Ed Frawley's Philosophy on Dog Training

Copyright 2005

I look at people who train dogs and lump them into three main categories. These categories can be placed on a sliding scale.

The first category, on the left, is the group of people who beg or bribe their dogs to do something by offering food or toy reward. Don't get me wrong, I use food and toys in training, but I also use distractions and corrections. These people use neither.

The problem with this group is that the dogs often choose not to do what's asked because they don't think the reward is worth the task. These dogs end up being pushy, dominant and often antisocial dogs. They are the dogs that are turned in to animal shelters as being unmanageable when in fact they act the way they do as a result of ineffective training.

At the other end of the scale, on the right side, is the second category of people. These are trainers who intimidate or force their dogs to do what they want. I call them the old school "yank and crank" trainers.

They put a choke collar on a dog and force it to do everything. Many professional dog trainers use these methods because to them time is money and with enough force a dog can be trained to do about anything.

The problem with yank and crank trainers is the dogs seldom like their handlers and in fact are often afraid of them. These are the dogs that tuck their tails or lay on the ground when asked to do something. When these dogs are near their owners they don't look happy because they never know when the hammer is going to fall.

The problem with both of these categories of trainers is the training produces inconsistent results and dogs that don't respect their owners. If you don't have a good bond with your dog, or if your dog does not respect you as a pack leader you will never reach consistency in training.

The third category of trainers is where I like people to be. These are the trainers that are in the middle of the two groups. They balance in the middle but are always prepared to move one way or the other depending on what's going on at that point in time.

The third group also uses food, toys, or praise to take a dog through a learning phase (where the dog actually learns the meaning of a command – for example "lay down") but then they add distractions to the program (i.e. having the dog lay down when someone tosses a ball in front of the dogs feet). If the dog is disobedient under distraction or does not follow directions this group teaches a dog that they will be corrected for being disobedient.

How to Build Leadership and Respect

When asked how to build a bond, gain respect and still maintain a leadership role with our dogs, the answer is that we must make sure the dog understands that we will always be fair with him. Dogs think in terms of black and white. They don't understand English and for the most part they don't reason, they just react.

We teach the dog that we are only going to ask him to do things he knows how to do. When he does something correctly we always let him know he is doing the right thing. This is called training with markers.

We never correct our dog for things that he has not been trained to do. This supports the black and white rule. We don't correct because "WE THINK HE KNOWS BETTER." We only correct because we know, through training, that he understands a command and then refuses to do it.

The dog must learn that we are 100% consistent in how and when we administer corrections. Being consistent at all times is one of the most important parts of being a pack leader. For example, we can't ignore aggressive behavior towards guests in our house and then correct the dog for aggression while on walks.

Corrections must also be administered within 1 ½ seconds of an infraction, not an hour after he peed on the floor. When I hear people say "He knows he did something wrong when I was gone," I shake my head and feel sorry for the dog.

One of the most important parts of training is for the handler to learn to administer corrections at a level that produces harmony in the family pack. This means that the handler must learn when simply saying "NO" is enough of a correction to let the dog know that he is doing something wrong VS. learning when a level 10 leash correction with a prong collar is needed (i.e. showing aggression to a child).

Dogs Can Love You and Not Respect You

I tell people that your dog can love you and not respect you. You cannot love your dog into respecting you. Love and respect are two unrelated emotions when referring to a relationship with a dog.

When my dog shows disrespect I increase the pressure I put on the dog. This means I work the dog harder and control his free time until he shows me the respect that I demand. A pack leader controls the lives of pack members.

New dog trainers need to remember that a dog learns through repetition. It takes 30 repetitions for a dog to learn a new command. Trainers are often guilty of thinking their dog understands them when in fact they have not repeated an exercise often enough for a dog to completely understand that exercise. This results in problems because the owners start to unjustly correct for something the dog does not fully understand. This breaks the black and white rule.

Most Trainers are too Passive

With this said, most new trainers are too passive. This is either a result of their temperament or a result of being exposed to ineffective and poor dog training techniques. We see this frequently in training classes which only focus on positive training methods while ignoring distractions and corrections. (i.e. classes that only use clickers and head halters).

Don't get me wrong, there is nothing wrong with clickers. I train with markers (rather than a clicker I use my voice and say "OK "). You can read the article I wrote on my web site about training with markers. The difference in what I do and what these ineffective obedience classes do is that once the dog has learned an exercise with markers I add distractions. I then correct the dog when the distraction becomes high enough to promote disobedience. This is the only way to get consistency in training.

On the other end of the scale we find professional dog trainers who take customer dogs in for training. The vast majority of these trainers use way too much force in training. I have already said "time is money" to these people and they can force a dog into submission a lot quicker than they can take it through a learning phase that uses markers.

Thirty five to forty years ago people trained dogs almost exclusively with force. Read the old William Kohler books. He was the master of yank and crank. In recent years the pendulum has swung to the other end of the spectrum – now it's clickers and head halters with no corrections. This is wrong and is playing itself out in the dog world where we see an explosion of dominance and aggressive problems in family pets. Once again the correct place is in the middle. The difference between a good trainer and a great trainer is the great trainer learns the balance between motivation and correction.

If you study pack behavior or even herd behavior you will see that rank issues in the pack are often dealt with very passively but disrespect is dealt with very quickly and aggressively. The same thing needs to happen in a relationship with a dog.

Respect-Cooperate-Try

I tell people a dog should respect me, cooperate, and try to do what I ask. If it does that then I can train it. This is not good behavior - it's expected behavior. That's a very important concept in dog training.

Many people own dogs that are disrespectful and behave badly. When these owners start to train their dogs and the dogs start to mind, the owners mistakenly think the dog is respecting them. These owners are often wrong. Respect comes over time and is a result of good leadership techniques.

People too often act like they are begging their dog to mind them. Go to any beginner obedience training class and you will see it. The sad thing is that this attitude in dog training not only produces inconsistent behavior it produces behavioral problems which often leads to a dangerous dog.

When owners learn the concepts of a learning phase, a distraction phase, a correction phase, and a maintenance phase, they are on the road to being a pack leader and they have the tools needed to train their dog.

Getting out and actually working with the dog will give a trainer the experience needed to learn the levels of praise and correction that are required to get a dog to do what you want it to do.

Always remember, "most dogs prefer being followers." Most dogs don't want to be a pack leader. When dog owners learn to control the lives of their dogs they will become the pack leader their dogs want them to be.

Basic Dog Obedience

ONLY ON DVD / 4 Hrs.
#302-D $40.00
<http://leerburg.com/302.htm>

This video pertains to all dogs

This video was produced for DVD with all new material in September of 2004. Our first Basic Dog Obedience video was done in 1982. Since then it has been redone twice. With every release, it gets better and better.

The purpose of the video is to teach people how to train their own dog to become a well mannered family pet. The problem with taking your dog to obedience class is that the dog is expected to learn new commands under extreme distraction (i.e. when it is surrounded by 10 or 20 other dogs). This is not the correct way to train a dog. In fact, it's totally unfair to the dog.

There are three phases to dog training:

1. The Learning Phase
2. The Correction Phase
3. The Proofing Phase

The correct way to train any dog is to teach the new commands in a distraction free environment, one that it is used to being in (i.e. like your kitchen or your back yard).

The approach we teach are new commands through positive motivation. During the learning phase we never correct the dog for not performing the command. It would be unfair to give a correction during this phase because the dog does not understand what it is expected to do yet.

Once the dog learns a command but then refuses to do it, it is then time for the correction phase of training. This is where the dog learns that if it does not do what it is told to do, it will get a correction. The video shows how to determine when to give corrections and what level of correction to give different dogs.

When the dog consistently performs obedience commands at home, it is ready for the distraction/proofing stage of training. During this stage we teach the dog that it must mind no matter where it is or what is going on around it (i.e. when people come to your house, when other dogs are around, when on a walk, or when playing with toys).

Our video will teach you how to train the basic commands of Sit, Down, Come, Stay, Heel, and go to your place.

Now you have a basic understanding of why I do not recommend obedience classes until your dog reaches the distraction phase of its training. By this point in your dog's training, obedience classes are fun. How else could you get 20 friends and their dogs together to help proof your dog's obedience commands?

There are 3 concepts in dog training that new trainers must understand before they begin to work with their dog:

1. How to break a command down into small components that your dog can understand.
2. How to effectively praise your dog. This video will teach you how and when to praise. You will learn what happens when you praise too much or to little.
3. How to administer a proper correction for your dogs temperament. You also will learn when to correct and just as important when not to correct your dog. In addition to what to do when you make a mistake and correct too hard, or what to do when you correct at the wrong time.

The training concepts in this video are broken down into step by step increments that even young children can understand. For further information on this Video please, view our web page at <http://leerburg.com/302.htm>.

The Groundwork to Becoming Your Puppy's Pack Leader

By Ed Frawley

A year or two ago I wrote an article titled "The Ground Work to Becoming a Pack Leader." This article has been well read, but over time it has become obvious that I should have written two articles; one for adult dogs; and one for puppies. This article will address the ground work that should be done with puppies.

When people bring an 8 week old puppy home their first concerns are "what should I feed my puppy and how do I stop it from peeing on the floor?" These are important, credible concerns but equally important, and often ignored, is the concept of how to establish yourself as your new pups pack leader.

The average dog owner does not have a clue about how strong the genes are that control their puppies temperament, personality and drives. Puppies that don't have a solid pack structure grow up to become dominant, obnoxious adult dogs.

This article will explain how we raise a new puppy in our home.

I have owned and trained dogs for 45 years, bred over 350 litters of German Shepherds since 1978. Cindy has owned dogs her entire life and done serious competition training since 1984. I only tell you these things so you can see that we have a lot of experience and expertise in this area. God knows there are enough people out there with little to no experience who will also offer you advice on this subject.

Pack Structure

Dogs are pack animals, just like wolves are pack animals. They are predators. Horses and cows, on the other hand, are herd animals and therefore are prey animals.

Predators live by one set of genetic rules and prey animals live by a different set of genetic rules.

Pack animals live in family packs which have a pack leader and lower ranking pack members. Dog packs, like wolf packs, are not a democracy. A pack is organized in a hierarchy of rank. Simply put, this means every member of the pack knows exactly what its rank is within the family pack.

Pack animals genetically understand this concept. This concept is the reason people have dog fights when they add a new dog to a home that already has dogs. Everyone has to re-establish the new pack order when a new pack member comes on board.

The Beginning of Pack Structure

When a puppy is raised with littermates they begin to establish their family pack at about 4 ½ weeks of age. They start by playing with one another. They bite and push each other around. Those pups that bite the hardest and push the most become the higher ranking pack members of the litter.

With that said, there is no question that the mother is the pack leader. A good mother will exert her leadership by warning puppies to stay away from her food bowl when she is eating. She protects her litter which demonstrates leadership and she also controls the litter in subtle ways that establish her as the pack leader.

What is a Pack Leader?

When people get puppies they need to establish themselves as the new pack leader. To do this correctly they should first understand exactly what a pack leader is.

Pack leaders are aloof, they are calm and they are self confident. A pack leader is fair in how he lives with pack members and while he is a dictator, he is a fair dictator who enforces a well defined set of rules that members know, understand and are expected to live by.

What a pack leader is not is a dictator who loses his temper, bullies pack members into compliance, and does not act in a fair manner in regard to the lives of pack members.

For example, the leader always eats first. Lower ranking members don't get the choice food. When the leader is finished and he turns the food over to other pack members, he does not come back and drive them away from the food.

People who put food down and then take it away or push the dogs away from the food bowl are bullies. This is how their dogs view them too. This is not practicing fair leadership principles.

The correct way is to make the dog do something (i.e. sit) before the food is put down. Once it's down they leave it alone until its time to pick it up. We leave food down for 15 minutes and then pick it up, even if the dog has not eaten it all.

It's easy to bully your way into a leadership position. People (mostly men) do this all the time. The problem is that the bullying destroys their relationship with their dogs.

I want my pack members to trust me, feel relaxed around me, and be comfortable in my presence. The only way this can happen is if they know the rules and anticipate our expectations. When that happens they know they will be treated fairly. They also know that if they ignore the rules they will suffer the consequences.

This leadership relationship is a learned endeavor. It's learned through the day to day experiences of living with an owner who establishes and enforces rules. It's also learned through formal obedience training.

But with this said, I tell people that hundreds of thousands of dogs go through obedience classes in this country every year. The vast majority of dominant dogs come out of these classes just as dominant as when they went in. That's because the owners were not trained in pack structure.

When puppies grow up and become dominant, aggressive dogs it is because they live with people who do not establish the correct family pack structure.

Where Does it Start?

When a puppy comes to your home its only experience in life has been with its mother and littermates. It sees that things have changed but it has no reason to believe that how it interacts with a family pack has changed.

It has played with litter mates by biting and chasing, that's how it thinks it should continue to interact within a family pack.

It takes a few days but once it accepts you and your family as its new pack it will try to interact with you the same way it did with litter mates, by biting and chewing.

The fact is, in its own small way its trying to find its rank within the new pecking order of your family.

It's your job to teach your puppy, without scaring it, that you are the new pack leader. It's your job to teach it that biting and chewing high ranking human pack members is unacceptable. Many people ignore these small challenges and others over react to them. You have to find the middle of the road.

Those who ignore this behavior often end up with dominant dogs, and those who over react and use too much force in correcting the biting end up with shy dogs that never reach their potential.

Establishing the Tether

When we bring a pup home we always use a dog crate. Those who don't use a crate are making a mistake. Those who won't use a crate should just quit reading because they are wasting their time to read further.

Our first goal is to reduce the possibility of house training mistakes and to teach the pup that being wild in the house is not going to happen.

So in the beginning most of our interaction with a new pup is done outside. We use a flat collar with a snap and one of the 20 foot cotton lines we have. When the pup runs around we let it drag the line.

While this is not a house training article I want to make the point that teaching a dog to pee or poop when its on a line is a very smart thing to do. You will find out how smart if you ever have to travel with your dog.

When we bring a pup in the house we never allow it to run around the house. We always have a line on it. What better way to establish our leadership than to control every aspect of the pups life. Trust me this does not fall on deaf ears.

Those who allow puppies to run around un-tethered are only asking for the problems that will eventually come up. These pups are going to get into things, they are going to pee on the floor, and they are going to jump up and play bite.

When we are tired of dealing with the pup it goes into its crate. In the beginning, its going to scream like a banshee for a few days but such is life. We will put the pup in a crate in the garage and let it scream its head off.

For those who don't have a garage you can leave a radio or TV on, or cover the crate with a sheet, or leave one of the toys with treats in the crate or leave a cows knuckle bone to chew on (although you need to be a little careful about loose stools here)

As time passes and the pup calms down and learns manners in the house I may let it lie at my feet when I work on my computer. If it doesn't calm down it stays in the crate when I don't have time for it.

In the article I wrote called "Who Pets My Puppy" I explain why I don't allow other people to pet or play with my puppy. The short version is that I want to become the center of the universe for my dog. I don't want my dog to be looking to other people as a source of praise and fun. I recommend that you take a minute and read or listen to that article.

Dealing with Dominant & Aggressive Dogs

ONLY ON DVD / 3 Hrs. 30 Min.
#301-D $40.00
<http://leerburg.com/301.htm>

Every year hundreds of thousands of dogs go through obedience training. The majority of dominant dogs that go through this training come out just as dominant as before they started training. The reason for this is that instructors and owners do not address issues of pack drive and rank within the pack.

This DVD was produced to help people analyze their dog's aggression problems. I have provided information to either help owners solve these problems, or if the handler does not feel comfortable in doing the work himself, the DVD will educate the owner so they can find a behaviorist that is qualified to work with dominant and aggressive dogs.

The vast majority of dog behaviorists are unqualified to offer advice on dog aggression or dominance. This DVD (and the e-book I wrote) provide enough information to help dog owners determine if an individual is qualified to assist in dominant or aggressive dog problems.

This DVD covers:

1. The types of dominance and the triggers that cause the dog to display this dominance
2. Recognizing the signs of dominance
3. Living with and training a dominant dog
4. Problem Solving
5. Picking a behaviorist

While I have seen a number of books that define dominance I have not seen any book (much less a DVD) that trains people how to deal with or train dominant dogs. If your dog is growling at you, family members, or friends, then you need to take steps to control this aggression.

If your dog is becoming animal aggressive and you want to learn how to live with and control a dog aggressive dog this DVD will help you.

Remote Collar Training for Pet Owners

ONLY ON DVD / 2 Hrs. 45 Min.
#318-D $40.00
<http://leerburg.com/318.htm>

Until now there has never been a well done training video that teaches pet owners the concepts of how to train with an electric collar. In my opinion the videos that come with various manufacturers collars are almost useless.

When used properly e-collar training is one of the most humane methods ever developed to train dogs. I call it training with an invisible leash. There is a myth that stimulation from an e-collar always involves pain. This is simply not true.

There are a number of different theories of how to train with an e-collar. I explain these methods in my DVD and then tell you why the methods I am offering are the best I have seen in 20 years of e-collar training.

The goal of all dog training is to teach our dog to follow a voice command. The training methods in this DVD teach a dog that the stimulation for an e-collar comes from the owner.

The DVD explains how to condition the dog to the e-collar. The old school trainers who simply make a dog wear the collar for a couple of weeks were wrong. I explain a better way.

The DVD explains what a dog should know before starting e-collar training. Not every dog is trained with the same levels of stimulation. Our DVD explains how to determine what level of stimulation your dog should be trained at. I then explain the concepts of using the collar and the protocol for taking a dog through this training.

There is also a section on using a collar to solve some behavioral problems – i.e. dog aggression.

Whelping Puppies and Their First 8 Weeks

DVD or VHS / 1 Hr. 45 Min.
#118 $40.00
<http://leerburg.com/118.htm>

This video explains how to prepare and assist a bitch in whelping a litter of puppies. There is extensive video of females whelping pups. It tells the breeder exactly what needs to be done during the birth and throughout the first 8 weeks of a pup's life. Ed Frawley (the owner of Leerburg Kennel) has bred German Shepherds since 1978. He has bred over 350 litters. You will benefit from the practical experience he has gained in whelping this many litters.

This video takes you through the trials of dealing with sick puppies. It shows exactly how to tube feed a weak puppy and it provides a medical program to follow for the entire litter.

As puppies go from day one to 8 weeks of age, they go through a series of changes or stages of development. We have divided the video into weekly segments. We explain the added responsibilities of the breeder as his or her pups approach and go through the weaning process. There is a list of "Do's and Don'ts" to raising a healthy litter to 8 weeks of age.

If you thought breeding dogs was a simple matter you may change your mind after watching this video. We constantly have people tell us that they watch this video before, during, and after a litter is whelped.

The concepts that are explained in this video can be applied to every breed of dog. Please view our web site and read the testimonials from the people who have used the video.

How to Raise a Working Puppy

Best Seller

Only on DVD / 1 Hr. 15 Min.

117-D $40.00

<http://leerburg.com/117.htm>

There is a big difference between how one should raise a working puppy and how pet owners raise their pets. Working puppies are expected to look at their world with more self confidence.

It does not make any difference if you are raising a Schutzhund puppy, a police service dog puppy, a puppy for personal protection work, or a puppy for competition obedience or agility. They can all benefit by making some simple changes in how they are brought up and handled.

This is not a bite training video. It is a video teaching people how we raise our personal pups here at Leerburg®. Cindy Rhodes, my partner and kennel manager, has raised more working puppies than anyone I know. I also have bred more working puppies than anyone I know. We have put our heads together to come up with a program that will benefit anyone interested in raising working puppies. Cindy and I have close to 50 years of combined experience raising and training dogs. This video allows you to benefit from our experience.

In this video we outline in a step-by-step manner how to socialize, imprint, and prepare your puppy for his or her working career. This is a common sense approach that anyone can do.

The key to raising a successful working puppy is to make the best use of the time you spend with your dog. An example of this is: one can take their pup for a walk and have it just be exercised; or one can take their pup for a walk and make it an experience in which the pup gets exercise, along with a chance to learn MARKERS and be introduced to environments that provide a small level of stress for the pup to learn to work through.

To help you form that plan this dog training DVD deals with the following topics:

1. Should the working pup be a house dog or a kennel dog?
2. How to manage and neutralize a working pup to training collars.
3. How we teach a working puppy that a vehicle is going to be a big part of its working career.
4. How a working puppy has to learn to be neutral to other dogs. We explain the protocol in how we approach this process.
5. How we socialize or we say neutralize our pups to strange environments.
6. One of the differences between a pet and a working puppy is that we are not as concerned with the manners of a working puppy. With that said there are certain manners that we do consider important and we start work on them at a very early age.
7. It is very common for new trainers to over exercise their puppy. We cannot tell anyone exactly how much to exercise their pup, but we do talk about some of the guidelines that we take into consideration.
8. We have a section in the DVD on medical issues and a working puppy. It's a given that a working puppy is going to be exposed to more examinations by a stranger (a Vet) than the average dog. We believe that a little forethought at an early age goes a long way towards eliminating a dog getting stressed over this as an adult.
9. We have a section on games and toys.
10. If you are raising a working puppy you are probably going to have a dog with a degree of drive. While this video does not show how to bring out that drive (my video Building Drive and Focus does that) - we do caution people that "JUST BECAUSE YOUR PUP CAN DO SOMETHING DOES NOT MEAN IT SHOULD DO SOMETHING."

Building Drive & Focus

Bernhard Flinks is one of Germany's top Schutzhund and Police K-9 competitors. He has been in the German Bundesseigerprufung six times. On three of those occasions he had the highest scoring protection dog in the competition. In the 4th Bundesseigerprufung he had the second highest scoring dog in protection. In 2002 he finished 13th with his dog Itor.

Bernhard is known in Germany for his ability to train dogs to work in high drive and bite with deep, full, calm grips. He is considered a master of grip training.

This video shows the foundation of grip work. No other instructor breaks grip training down to this level and makes it so easy for new trainers to understand. The great part of this foundational training is that all of this work can be done at home and does not require a helper.

Bernhard is the first sport instructor I have met who places a great deal of emphasis on the relationship between the dog and its handler. His program teaches handlers how to build a relationship of trust and understanding. In his seminars he often says that this training program establishes a better relationship with your dog than letting the dog sleep in your bed at night.

This 2 hour video teaches people how to bring their dog's drive up to its genetic potential of drive. When a dog is able to be placed in high-drive we then show how to teach focus and concentration. Dogs must learn to remain in high-drive and concentrate for 15 minutes if they are going to do well in a Schutzhund Obedience routine. In this video dogs learn that heel, sit, and down are drive exercises and not compulsion exercises. If you would like to learn more about this video please visit <http://leerburg.com/101e.htm>.

20 Ft. Cotton Training Leash

20 Ft. Cotton Training Leash #729 $ 16.00
<http://leerburg.com/leashes.htm#cotton>

If you are going to train using the Bernhard Flinks method of building drive you will need this 20 foot cotton web line. I like a cotton line much better than nylon for this work, it's much easier on your hands.

Orbee Ball

Small Orbee Ball	2"	#788-1	$ 8.99
Medium Orbee Ball	3"	#788-2	$ 12.99
Large Orbee Ball	4"	#788-3	$ 16.49

<http://leerburg.com/788.htm>

This is the perfect soft, rubber ball on a string. It does not have a bell inside for the dog to accidentally swallow. In training, in order to build drive it is important not to use a hard rubber ball on a string. A hard ball can actually reduce drive if you accidentally hit the dog in the head as you work the dog. Trainers should never use tennis balls because their saliva combines with the glue in the cover of the ball and decays the tooth enamel. If you are going to train using the Bernhard Flinks method to build drive you will need a ball on a string.

Ball Clip (made to hold an Orbee Ball)

Ball Clip #894-1 $ 12.00
<http://leerburg.com/894.htm>

This ball clip is made of metal. It is used when you are doing focus and drive training. By clipping the ball to the ball clip around your neck, it allows to have your hands free and lets the dog focus on the ball and the handler's face, rather than their hands. Used by Bernhard Flinks during Leerburg® seminars.

Preparing Your Dog for the Helper

“The Foundation of Grip Training”

Only on DVD / 4 Hrs.
#310-D $65.00
<http://leerburg.com/310.htm>

This is the training video that follows “Building Drive and Focus Video”. This video teaches the handler how to prepare a dog to start protection work on a helper. Over the years trainers have been led to believe that they needed an experienced training helper to teach a dog the foundation of bite development. This was not accurate.

While we will always need good helpers, Bernhard Flinks is changing the way we look at bite development. He is teaching trainers that through proper play and drive building exercises we don’t need to introduce our young dogs to a helper until they are 10 or 12 months old. This 4 hour DVD covers that training in detail.

Bernhard shows people (through a step-by-step training program) how to work with their own dogs at home or at their training club. If you work your dog for 1 1/2 to 2 minutes, two or three times a day, trainers can establish the foundation and technique of gripping, biting, carrying, and outing.

The foundation of all Schutzhund bite work is a full calm grip. No one gets full points in Schutzhund unless their dog demonstrates a full calm grip. Bernhard is known in Germany as a master of GRIP TRAINING. He has been in the Bundessieger Prufung 6 times with three different dogs. He had the highest protection score three times, the second highest one time and SG twice (but with perfect grips on his current dog Itor). No one is better at grip development than Bernhard Flinks.

The goal of this training video is to teach grip work. Some of the segments of this video are:

1. Teaching the dog to STRIKE the prey item.
2. Teaching the dog to carry and hold the prey item without mouthing.
3. Teaching the dog to run in a circle without mouthing.
4. Teaching the dog to come into our arms and stand calmly without mouthing.
5. Teaching the dog to have a firm hold on the prey item.
6. Teaching the dog to OUT the prey item in a manner that does not promote chewing.
7. Teach the dogs to learn the technique of the escape, attack and courage test without mouthing.

Training the Motivational Retrieve

DVD or VHS / 1 Hr. 40 Min.
#106 $50.00
<http://leerburg.com/106.htm>

Many trainers feel that a forced retrieve is the only way to obtain a consistent retrieve. This is not the case. Bernhard Flinks has a great program to teach a motivational retrieve. His methods work with dogs that have good prey drive. This training video covers a step by step training program that everyone can use on their dogs. If you care about the relationship you have with your dog you will train the motivational retrieve. You can always resort to force if need be.

I went to Bernhard’s kennel in northern Germany to film this video. That video footage was combined with footage from 5 training seminars that I filmed here in this country.

We have had excellent reviews from the people who have purchased this video. It has opened the eyes of a lot of sport trainers all over the world. Even though I have produced a Forced Retrieve video, I am not a fan of force training.

Training a Competition Tracking Dog

DVD or VHS / 2 Hrs.
#203 $65.00
<http://leerburg.com/203.htm>

This video was filmed over a 3 year period in Germany & America. It is one of the most comprehensive studies ever done on sport tracking (foot step tracking). The video has had rave reviews from a number of different dog training magazines, including "Front & Finish". The AKC even requested a copy for their Judges' library.

This video uses all motivational methods to teach a dog to track. While we discuss the difference between motivational tracking and forced tracking, we do not teach any forced tracking in this video. The video begins with the theory of track scent. There is a section on how to select tracking fields for dogs of different skill levels. We show good and bad fields for beginner dogs and the more advanced dogs.

There is an excellent section on track laying. In this style of tracking the handler lays his own tracks. You are shown the best ways to remember where your track has been laid. You will learn how to use food in training a foot step tracking dog. This is broken down into a step by step program that anyone can follow.

To be competitive in tracking, you need to know when the dog is ready for cross winds, tail winds, and cover changes. Understanding wind currents is a must if you are going to develop a nose to the ground, step by step tracking dog. We show you how to make wind currents WORK FOR YOU in developing a sound training program.

Hard Surface Tracking "It's Not Impossible"

<http://leerburg.com/210.htm>

This video was filmed in Holland while visiting the Dutch police dog schools in Nunspeet and Rotterdam. I am not aware of any better hard surface tracking instructors in the world. The key to hard surface tracking is selecting the right dog. You will see the type of dogs the Dutch use and I will point out a few of their training techniques in this video. The purpose for this video is to show police dog handlers that hard surface tracking is possible if you have the right dog and are willing to put in the training time.

Track Laying for the Police Tracking Dog

#207 $30.00
<http://leerburg.com/207.htm>

The hardest part about training Police or S&R tracking dogs is finding track layers. Every time you ask a new person to lay tracks you have to go through the same ritual. You explain all of the basics and all of the terminology for what needs to be done.

This video is designed to train new track layers. We cover how to walk a straight leg, double laying tracks, kicking corners, marking high to low veg, marking road crossings, marking fence crossings, where to lay articles, and much, much more.

In my video titled "Training Police Tracking Dogs - Level One" I only spent about 10 minutes of the 2 hour training video on track laying. This video spends 55 minutes on the subject. This video will pay for itself in time saved in training new people.

Training Tracking Dogs S&R or Police

DVD or VHS / 2 Hrs.
#205 $65.00
<http://leerburg.com/205.htm>

There are 2 types of tracking: "foot step tracking" and "tracking through drive". Foot step tracking is taught with food and a ball. It is designed for sport dogs. Tracking through drive is designed for service dogs. Here the dog is taught to follow the track at a dead run. There is always a person at the end of every track. Tracking through drive is the only way to train a S&R dog or a Police Service Dog.

If you are a K-9 officer who trains your service dog with food and a ball you already know that you only catch 3% or 4% of the people you track. The RCMP (Royal Canadian Mounted Police) catch 45% to 50% of all the people they track. This includes suburban and urban tracking. If a suspect runs in the country, they catch 95% of them.

This video was filmed in Alberta, Canada at the police dog training center for the RCMP. The RCMP instructors are the best tracking dog instructors in the world. They have been training police tracking dogs since 1935. I filmed three videos with them. This is the first video. This video will show how the RCMP can train a dog (in 60 training tracks) to follow a 1 hour old, 5 KM, unknown track that contains back tracks, road crossings, fence crossings, and articles.

The RCMP has 3 levels of tracking. This video covers Level One, or tracking in a rural environment. Level Two and Three (Video 208) deals with suburban and urban tracking.

I have had literally hundreds of K-9 officers call or write to say, "This is the only way to train a police dog to track." They wish they had seen this video when starting to train their dogs. Many officers have said, "This training method put the fire back into my police dog. Now he enjoys tracking and we are catching people that used to get away."

If you would like to read several excellent training articles on this subject, please go to the article section on my home page at <http://leerburg.com/articles.htm>. If you love tracking like I do, you will not regret the effort. We have the best K-9 home page on the internet.

The RCMP use these three video tapes I did with them in their training school. All new K-9 handlers view these videos.

Training Urban & Suburban Tracking Dogs

DVD or VHS / 2 Hrs.
#208 $65.00
<http://leerburg.com/208.htm>

This video was also done with the RCMP in Canada. In it we train a dog to track in a suburban and urban environment. In Level One Tracking (Video 205) we taught the dog to track in the country. The reason all police dogs must first learn to track in the country is because the country is relatively distraction free. We actually teach the dog to track in the country and then use a portion of the Level Two & Three to teach the dog to deal with the distractions of the city.

In this video the dogs learn to deal with extreme distractions: dogs barking on the other side of a fence, cats in back yards, and kids following along. The dogs also learn to deal with much smaller scent pictures, more cross tracks, and extreme cover changes.

Most people think that handling a tracking dog simply means holding on to the line and just following the dog. In fact, completing a successful track is 75% proper handling and 25% good dog work.

This video teaches hard surface road crossings, along with extended periods of track loss (where the dog must search and search for a lost track.) We teach the handler the true meaning of "reading your dog." Every successful K-9 handler is a master at recognizing negatives and assisting his dog in re-acquiring the lost track.

If you are a K-9 officer in a large city, do not buy this video thinking you can skip the Level One country tracking just because you never track outside the city. The country work is critical to the development of a good tracking dog. Dogs must first learn to track in the country before they are exposed to the distractions of city tracking. If you try and skip country tracking you will fail, guaranteed.

Bite Training Puppies

DVD or VHS / 2 Hrs.
#108 $65.00
<http://leerburg.com/108.htm>

There are areas of dog training, whether it be Police Service work, KNPV, Schutzhund, Personal Protection, or the Ring Sports, that require a dog to learn to bite people. By selecting the right pup and then imprinting as much bite work as possible at an early age, we end up with a much better adult.

The first 45 minutes of this video deals with the instincts and drives to look for in selecting a puppy for protection training. We show puppy tests that explain how to select the right pup from a litter. This video was filmed in Germany and America over a 5 year period. We filmed a German litter being tested and then went back two years later and filmed one of these dogs just before it got a SchH III.

The tests indicated that dogs from this litter would all do protection work, but they would not make good obedience competitors. Our selection tests were 100% accurate in forecasting the temperament of these dogs. The dogs all did good protection work, but were stubborn in obedience.

For a dog to become a successful protection dog, it must have its prey drive developed at a young age. There is a window of opportunity that takes place between 8 weeks and 14 or 15 months. If the prey drive is not worked properly during this period, most dogs never develop to their full potential. This video shows how to start this process.

Prey drive in a puppy is simply the drive to chase, grab, and play tug of war with a prey item. The prey item is either a sack, a rag, or a puppy tug. We use the prey drive to teach the puppy skills it will need later to use in protection.

During this early imprinting, we show how to teach 8 week old pups to grip (or bite) firm. We teach it to tolerate the stick, so it won't look at it in a negative way. We teach the pup that to win its prey it must not bite and pull back (or tug back) but rather it must bite fuller and deeper into the prey. This is called a COUNTER into the prey.

All of this training is done by the handler. I compare this to a father teaching his child to fight. A father can teach his child the basic skills of judo or karate and it's all done in the framework of being a game. It's the same thing with the handler working his own pup in prey drive. This video explains the information needed to teach a puppy the basic skills of bite work.

While this training is the foundation for protection or attack work, the pups are not capable of doing serious handler protection until they are mentally mature enough to deal with the stress of a real encounter. Most dogs are not mentally mature until they are 18 to 30 months old.

After breeding over 350 litters of German Shepherds, competing in Schutzhund during the early and mid 1980's, and then working a police K-9 for 10 years as a Deputy Sheriff, I have learned that it is absolutely necessary to start protection training at a very early age. The dogs that are started young are much better prepared to deal with the stress of defensive training that takes place when they mature.

The First Steps of Bite Training

DVD or VHS / 2 Hrs.
#101B $65.00
<http://leerburg.com/101-b.htm>

When done properly, protection training is extremely complex. If the foundation for protection work is not 100% correct, it is only a matter of time before the dog and handler run into problems. The goal in producing this video was to show that a person with little or no dog training experience can understand how to lay this foundation.

The video begins with 6 month old dogs. It explains the drives of protection training. It explains how a dog's drives are effected by its nerves and genetics. The viewer learns how to identify the drive thresholds of his or her dog, and then uses that information to develop a training program tailored to their specific dog.

The "helper" is the person that gets bit during protection training. In a perfect world everyone would have an experienced helper to work with their young dogs. If that were the case we would almost all have super dogs. Few people are lucky enough to have a helper with any skill at all to work their dog.

This video shows exactly what the handler can do with their own dog to build a foundation for protection work. Just as importantly, we show the exact spot in training where the handler has to get a helper to continue the bite training. So the video answers the question "How much can I do to train my own dog in protection training?"

This video is a must for training new helpers. It identifies the drives a dog works in, critical distance, and avoidance. So the new helper has a clear picture of exactly what their role is in the training process.

The video is organized into the following categories:

1. Drives and Drive Thresholds
2. How Nerves Effect Drive Thresholds
3. How to Organize a Training Session
4. Equipment & German Commands
5. The Role of the Handler in Bite Training
6. The Role of the Helper in Protection Training
7. Setting the Prey Drive in Young Dogs
8. The First Bite on a Sleeve
9. Developing a Firm, Calm, Grip
10. Recognizing & Training the Counter
11. Contesting the Prey
12. Training the Carry
13. Taking the Prey Away from the Dog with the OUT
14. Teaching the Pursuit and Targeting Off Leash
15. Setting up a Training Session Based on Skills
16. What can be Done with a Dog that Lacks Prey Drive

The training in this video will work with dogs of any age from 6 months and older.

The First Steps of Defense

DVD or VHS / 2 Hrs.
#101D $65.00
<http://leerburg.com/101-d.htm>

For a dog to do police service work, serious personal protection work, or good Schutzhund work, it must have a solid foundation in defensive drive training. Before defensive training can take place, the dog must have already gone through prey bite development and it must have reached mental maturity. Starting defense work too young can ruin a dog's working ability for life.

Defensive drive is very different from prey drive. A dog's defensive drive is the drive to protect itself from a perceived threat. Prey is the drive to chase and capture prey. These are two totally different concepts in the mind of the dog.

You can learn about prey drive development in my video titled "The First Steps of Bite Training" (video 101-B) or you can view my internet homepage and read a number of training articles that I have written on this subject. This information is located at <http://leerburg.com/articles.htm>.

Dogs reach mental maturity at different ages. Some as young as 16 months, while others don't mature until they are over 30 months old. The training in this video should not begin until a dog is mature enough to handle the stress of defensive training.

A dog is not in a comfortable situation when it is initially working in defense. In defensive work, the dog is being threatened and thinks it is about to be attacked. As a result it's stressed. We cannot put young pups or young adults in this position. This would be compared to expecting an 8 year old boy to defend his home from burglars.

Our video shows how to take a young dog through the steps of defensive training. This is an extremely critical phase of a dog's training career. The reason for this is that there is a fine line between a dog defending itself, and the fight or flight response. In protection training we never want to push a dog into avoidance.

For years people in this country have only trained dogs in prey drive. In fact, even today many dogs are still trained only in prey drive. This is a serious mistake if the handler ever expects that dog to do any form of personal protection. Dogs trained only in prey do not protect their handlers.

The helper work for defense can never be done by the dog's owner. It must always be done by a helper that is adept at reading and understanding the drives and temperament of defense. If you are training a new helper, we recommend that your helper watch and learn from the video. The information we cover is as important for the helper as it is for the dog.

Training Personal Protection Dogs

DVD or VHS / 1 Hr. 35 Min.
#105 $65.00
<http://leerburg.com/105.htm>

This video assumes a dog has already gone through bite development. This means "you and your dog" know and understand the material in our bite development videos. If you need to know exactly what videos cover bite development go to my web site for this training video (<http://leerburg.com/105.htm>) and you will see a list of tapes I recommend before the work on this tapes starts.

Training Personal Protections Dogs provides the information needed to convert a sport schutzhund dog or a dog with basic bite training into a Personal Protection Dog. The first portion covers GERMAN and ENGLISH commands used in bite training; followed by discussions on safe equipment and dog handling during bite work; then basic tests for Personal Protection dogs, and "Learning Curves in Bite Training".

This video shows how to target the dogs bite to different parts of the body. This is taught in segments using body bite suits. We begin with Leg Bites; then Leg to Arm Transfers; then Leg to Arm and Arm to Leg Transfers; then Arm to Arm Transfers; and finally Shoulder and Back Bites.

Although the concepts are similar to those covered in our video 104 "Police Service Dogs," most Personal Protection dogs are not as strong as patrol dogs, and therefore need more training steps in their program. We show you how to do this. Muzzle work is the only way to proof a dog that has been trained in body bites. Muzzle training is broken into 6 steps followed by a section on "Helper Hints" for effective muzzle work.

We then discuss 4 methods of putting defense or civil drive into your dog. Civil drive is the ability of a dog to alert on a man without protective equipment on.

Strong dogs with a lot of civil drive, will turn on their handlers if they receive too much pressure during training. Although this type of dog is not common in America, you need to know how to safely handle it when you see it. This video demonstrates 4 methods to safely work strong, civil dogs. You learn when one method should be used over another.

This video assumes the viewer understands the basics of bite training. If you have never trained a protection dog, we recommend you first purchase our video series on bite development: "The First Steps of Bite Training" and "The First Steps of Defense".

Many police departments waste THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS in officer training time with dogs that never should have been selected as a Patrol Dog. Our video on "Training a Police Service Dog" shows how to test a dog to determine if it has the necessary drive to do police work.

Some dogs make excellent personal protection dogs, but are not good enough for police work. We show exactly where to draw the line between a Personal Protection Dog and a Police Service Dog.

The majority of accidental training bites are caused from equipment failure or handler errors. Our video shows what equipment to use. We include an excellent section on leash handling during bite training.

We show how to train a dog to target its bite to the entire body starting with leg bites, then leg to arm transfers, arm to leg transfers, and finally, back and shoulder bites.

Police dogs are often sent off leash, so we show how to put "off leash control" into the dogs. Off leash control is a must for every department that wants to eliminate accidental bites.

We show how to train a K-9 to work a traffic stop. The dog must learn when he can and cannot leave the car.

This video has detailed sections on blind work, field searches, and building searches. Building searches are one of the most hazardous duty assignments a K-9 officer is required to perform. Our training methods focus on officer survival.

This video does not deal with training a police dog to track. If you have an interest in training service dogs to track you should refer to the 3 training videos (205, 207, 208) that I have done with the Royal Canadian Mounted Police (RCMP). The RCMP has the best tracking dogs in the world. These videos will show how they catch 95% of the suspects they track in rural areas.

Bark & Hold Training for Police Service Dogs

DVD or VHS / 2 Hrs.

#123 $65.00

<http://leerburg.com/123.htm>

Training a police dog the bark & hold (B&H) is very different from training a sport dog the B&H. Most service dogs come from the ranks of sport dogs. They must quickly change their view of the helper from someone that is a prey object, to someone who is a fighting partner. Trainers do not have months to accomplish this, in most cases it must be done in weeks.

This requires different training methods and a different attitude toward barking. No longer does the dog sit closely to the helper barking in a challenging manner, hoping to make the helper flee so he can get a bite. Rather, the dog stands back 2 or 3 meters (because he realizes the suspect can hurt him) and he barks to notify his handler that he has found the suspect.

A police dog must now view the helper as a fighting partner and not the motor behind his prey item or his sleeve. The bark and hold for a police dog must come from fight drive.

Fight drive is an inherited characteristic. It is not something that can be trained into a dog. Fight drive is often confused as defense. It is not defense. A dog becomes defensive when it is put in a situation where it is concerned for its own safety. Dogs are not comfortable when they are working in defense. Fight drive on the other hand is based on experience and self confidence. When a dog is working in fight drive he is confident of his ability to dominate the suspect under every circumstance and in every environment. In this video there is an extensive section dealing with fight drive work, on green dogs and experienced dogs.

The thing that surprises conventional trainers is the decoy work for this method of bark & hold training. It's easier and it makes a lot more sense than what most people are used to. Our video explains the decoy work in detail.

Dogs that work in fight drive rather than prey drive are a lot easier for the handlers to control. This video shows how to get a serious bark and hold out of a genetically correct dog. The video is a must for every K-9 handler and sport trainer that wants to train a more serious dog.

If you would like to learn more about the B&H for Police Service Dogs, visit my web site <http://leerburg.com>. I have written several excellent articles on the drives of protection training and the bark & hold for police service dogs. You will also find articles on training police tracking dogs.

Muzzle Fighting for Police Service Dogs

DVD or VHS / 1 Hr. 20 Min.
#121 $65.00
<http://leerburg.com/121.htm>

Our training video deals with "Muzzle Fighting" for police service dogs. Working in muzzle is one of the least understood exercises in protection work. The video takes the viewer step by step through muzzle fighting.

The reason we chose the term "MUZZLE FIGHTING" is because there is a real difference between what we show in this video, and what happens when someone just throws a muzzle on a dog and sends him after a helper without a sleeve. If a dog is genetically capable of muzzle fighting we will show you how to train it to use its body to go out and knock the snot out of someone.

The goal of this video is to train a dog in muzzle to alert on a passive suspect located some distance from his handler. If that suspect tries to fight or flee, the dog is to physically fight the man by punching him center mass with his body. Training a dog to indicate on a suspect that is running away from him, stimulating him, or agitating him is easy. Training a dog to indicate on a man standing still, or a man laying quietly on the ground is another matter all together.

This video explores the various muzzles on the market. It shows exactly what a dog must be doing in bite work before it is ready to be introduced to muzzle fighting. We go through all of the training steps for muzzle and show examples of what happens to dogs when they get ahead of themselves in training.

We also show what happens to dogs that are not genetically capable of doing this work. We go through the training steps for bark and hold in muzzle, and we show you how to set up scenarios in muzzle, that fit your needs. This video is also ideal for the helper, because too many times people ask friends or other officers to help them with their muzzle work. Too often this creates problems.

Good muzzle training adds "fight drive" to a dog. It teaches the dog to work center mass on a helper's body and not focus on sleeves and other equipment. Sport dog trainers can learn a lot about improving their dogs through this aspect of police work. Teaching a sport dog to do bark and hold in muzzle really produces flashy SCHUTZHUND dogs.

Training a police service dog in the muzzle is a must for K-9 officers that wish to work the street with a dog.

Tactical Training with Police Service Dogs

DVD or VHS / 1 Hr. 40 Min.
#111 $49.00
<http://leerburg.com/111.htm>

Police K-9 training programs need to simulate actual street situations. In this video we set up a number of common scenarios that have actually happened with K-9 Teams. We show what happens when the average Police Service Dog is placed in these situations. We recommend several changes to training programs that will compensate for past mistakes. You will see how these changes result in a safer situation for the officers and their dogs.

When a K-9 Handler responds to a call with outside officers who have never worked with police dogs, the handler must be familiar with the procedure to control the situation. In this video we explain how to organize a search team. We explain how to brief the team on each member's responsibilities. You will see several excellent searches and you will also see what can happen when a K-9 search goes bad.

Safe gun handling reaches a new dimension when a dog is added. Working a dog under friendly fire, handler fire and shots fired by the suspect are all covered in detail. We show how dangerous a dog can be to his own handler and other officers if it is aggressive to gun fire. We also show how to train a dog not to be aggressive to gun fire. Arrest procedures with a dog are covered in detail.

Training Building Search for Police K-9 Dogs

DVD or VHS / 2 Hrs.
#122 $65.00
<http://leerburg.com/122.htm>

This video deals with the process of developing a police dog's skill in locating criminal suspects hiding in a building.

When you watch a good service dog doing a building search he makes it look easy. Believe me it's not. New officers often over estimate their dog's ability to perform this skill. They fall into the "NOSE TRAP," that's where a handler assumes that because his dog has a good sense of smell the dog will not have a problem learning a building search.

Over estimating your dog's scenting ability is not only bad dog training, it could very well get you killed. This almost happened to me. What I cover in this video is very serious training for police K-9 officers.

The video has a number of training segments. There is a short segment explaining what kind of temperament a dog should have for this work, there is a segment where a dog should be in training before starting Building Search training, there is a segment on the most common problems that dogs face when they start the training and there is a detailed step by step breakdown of the training. These training steps cover pursuits into a building, announcements by the handler, learning indications, off lead control and passive suspects, muzzle work and directed searches in a building.

This video has had excellent reviews by very experienced K-9 handlers. Check out our web site for more details on this video.

Using a Narcotics detection dog is "the most unobtrusive method available to search a suspects vehicle, house, or belongings." The goal of every narcotics dog handler should be to eliminate false indications by his dog (an intentional false indication could lead to violation of a person's constitutional rights). This video emphasizes training techniques

Training Off Leash Control with Directed Search for Police K-9

DVD or VHS / 1 Hr. 30 Min.
#125 $50.00
<http://leerburg.com/125.htm>

The directed search is one of the more important exercises that police K-9 handlers must teach their dog. It is used in building and area searches.

If a service dog is to work safely off leash it must know the directed search. In today's society K-9 handlers must have complete control over their dogs at all times. The training program for the directed search is an excellent way to accomplish this goal.

The training segments for this tape are:

- Training the Recall under Extreme Distraction
- Teaching the Blind Search on a Training Field
- Teaching the Directed Search in a Building
- Drive Building Exercises for Directed Search

This video and the building search video were done with the help of Kevin Sheldahl. Kevin is a full time police K-9 officer plus an International Police Dog Judge for WPO, PSP, and DPO. I feel he is one of the top police K-9 instructors in the world. Check our web site for more details.

that will provide you with a dog that not only finds drugs, but also a dog that will not false hit on cutting agents, and other odors.

This video details selection testing dogs for narcotics work. We demonstrate selection testing with several breeds of dogs. The video discusses the types of narcotics to train with, and the safety measures a handler is required to take with the different types of drugs.

We demonstrate how to start a dog in training and how to advance him through his training in a step by step manner until he is ready to work the street.

Training sections also include: leash handling, building the dog's indications, training the dog to indicate more than one type of drug, training the dog OFF of cutting agents, and other scents. We discuss: when to use corrections and when not to, how to deal with handler errors in training, how to organize a search, how to read your dog during a search, and how to proof a dog during training. There is also a short section on court testimony.

Training Competition Heeling

“With Tom Rose”

DVD or VHS / 2 Hrs.
#304 $45.00
<http://leerburg.com/304.htm>

This is the best obedience video on the market for teaching people how to train a competition heeling dog. This video covers a lot more than just heeling. Tom deals with sits, downs, fronts, and much more.

We teach how to get and keep eye contact with the dog during obedience work. The dog is taught to always focus its attention on the handler's face. If the dog understands an exercise and is always giving eye contact with the handler throughout an exercise it is less likely to miss a command. It is also going to look great for the judge.

In this video we use the students from Tom Rose's Dog Training School working with untrained dogs. By including these students (along with Tom working his own dog) you will see the correct way to train and you will see the most common mistakes all new handlers make.

Our customers are always telling us that what sets our videos apart from all other dog obedience videos is we use untrained dogs. Where as, all of the other videos on the market use fully trained dogs to demonstrate an exercise. Untrained dogs will almost always have the same problems and make the same mistakes. People learn more from watching untrained dogs being worked.

Training the Jumps

DVD or VHS / 1Hr. 30 Min.
#307 $45.00
<http://leerburg.com/307.htm>

This video deals with Schutzhund and AKC jump training. We have combined the best training techniques from our many visits to Germany, England, throughout the United States, and Canada. You will learn the secrets of Schutzhund, Agility, and Competition Obedience trainers in this one video.

The Bar Jump, the High Jump, the Broad Jump, and the Inclined Wall are all covered in detail. Training a dog to jump safely and with consistency requires a step by step training program. Some dogs are not as coordinated as others; we offer ideas on how to help these dogs.

If you follow our motivational approach to this work you will end up with a competitive jumper.

Training the Send Away

DVD or VHS / 1 Hr. 25 Min.
#306 $45.00
<http://leerburg.com/306.htm>

The instructor in this training video is Ed Frawley from Leerburg® Kennels. This video teaches people how to train a dog to do A Motivational Send Away for the Sport of Schutzhund or the AKC Obedience ring. It does not teach a forced send away. If the training is done correctly you can get fast, straight send aways from your dog.

The video breaks the exercise into component parts. Some of this work can be started at a very young age. In fact the training can begin with small puppies. We explain how old a dog must be to add the different levels of difficulty.

The video has an excellent trouble shooting and problem solving section. In the trouble shooting section we analyze actual Schutzhund trials in which dogs fail the send away.

Training the Forced Retrieve

DVD or VHS / 1 Hr. 35 Min.
#305 $45.00
<http://leerburg.com/305.htm>

In my opinion the best way to train the retrieve is motivational. Unfortunately not all dogs can be trained with motivation. Dogs who will not train motivational need to be force trained.

Over the years there have been a number of methods used to train the forced retrieve: the ear pinch, the electric shock collar, or a line attached to the dogs toe that a handler would pull. While all of these methods work, none work as quickly as the techniques shown in this video.

In this video Tom Rose takes two dogs that had never had retrieval training. They were both holding the article after their first training session.

Tom's method produces the quickest results with the least amount of stress on the dog. You will see that Tom offers very little room for avoidance during this work. He progresses through very small training steps which keeps the stress level to a minimum for the dog.

Over the years I have seen trainers in Europe and the States use one part or another of this program, but I have never seen it put together this way. Tom Rose has refined the forced retrieve to an easily understood program that anyone can follow.

Training Your Agility Dog

DVD or VHS / 1 Hr. 35 Min.
#303 $45.00
<http://leerburg.com/303.htm>

The Agility Dog Sport came to this country from England. It can be compared to a horseman's steeplechase. In the Agility sport, a dog must run through a course with a number of different jumps and climbing apparatus. This is a timed event with detailed rules. The handlers run along with their dogs and direct them to each of the jumps. This is one of the fastest growing sports in America.

This video was filmed in England with Peter Lewis. Peter started training agility in the early 1980's. He is the founder of the Agility Dog Sport. The video approaches every type of jump and climbing article, separately. The training for each jump is broken down into a step by step training method that works on all dogs. Peter's methods are strictly motivational, there is no force used. This results in happy working dogs that literally fly over the jumps.

The video teaches how to train the dog to hit every contact point. It also has a detailed training section on how to handle a dog in an Agility Competition. Unlike AKC Obedience, Agility dogs need to work on the right, the left, in front, and behind the handler. American trainers have never had to approach this type of handling in any other style of training. This video shows you how to "handle" your dog in Agility.

Schutzhund the Dog Sport

DVD or VHS / 50 Min.
#102 $30.00
<http://leerburg.com/102.htm>

Schutzhund is by far the most popular dog sport in Europe, with the first Schutzhund exam taking place in 1901. It's now the fastest growing dog sport in America. Schutzhund came to this country in 1970 when a German immigrant, Gernot Ridel, introduced it in southern California. Gernot traveled the country during the 1970's giving Schutzhund seminars. I attended one of the seminars in 1974 and got hooked.

This video is intended to educate the viewer on what the sport of Schutzhund is all about. You will learn how the sport was formed, and why Schutzhund is the reason German bloodline dogs are so much better than American dogs. There is a section detailing the origins and the history of Schutzhund, and a section explaining the various Schutzhund titles. Much of this video was filmed in Germany.

If you would like to learn more about the sport of Schutzhund, this video is a must. We recommend that new trainers and Schutzhund Clubs purchase this video to get started in this exciting dog sport.

Handler Training for a Companion "B"

DVD or VHS / 55 Min.

#112 $40.00

<http://leerburg.com/112.htm>

In 1992 the rules for Schutzhund were amended to make it mandatory for all dogs to pass a Companion Dog "B" exam before competing in a Schutzhund I Trial.

This video is designed to show the handler exactly what the judge expects from the dog and the handler for a Companion Dog "B". We include video of an actual "B" exam along with computer generated diagrams to make it easier to understand exactly what is expected from the handler.

If I have heard it once, I have heard it a hundred times "I wish I had purchased this video before I started to train my dog". The video is laid out so the viewer can easily understand the steps to the Companion "B", and then design a training program to accomplish a successful examination.

Training Handlers for a Schutzhund I Trial

DVD or VHS / 1 Hr. 35 Min.

#113 $65.00

<http://leerburg.com/113.htm>

The purpose of this video is to teach trainers how to handle a dog in a Schutzhund I Trial, and get the maximum number of points possible. Many times handler errors (and not dog errors) result in points being lost at a competition. Many times it is the handler errors that make the difference between the high scoring dog and the number two placed dog. There are times a dog fails a competition when it could have passed if the handler had only done something a little differently.

This video is dedicated to training handlers and not dog training. The video is divided into 4 major sections:

1. Pre-Trial Preparation
2. Schutzhund I Tracking
3. Schutzhund I Obedience
4. Schutzhund I Protection

The first section on pre-trial preparation, explains how serious competitors prepare for an upcoming competition. We explain how a well prepared handler gets the most out of his dog, and reduces stress on the day of the trial.

The section on tracking begins with: preparing your dog the morning of the trial, reporting to the trial secretary, reporting to the judge with your dog before the track, laying your track for competition (what is acceptable and what is not), tracking your dog, receiving your critique, and finally, how to deal with a dog that is having problems on a track.

The obedience and protection sections are broken down into equally detailed sub-sections. Not only did we try to show the correct way to handle a dog in a trial, we also dealt with the most common handler errors.

I also included a very nice SchH II routine with a 100 point protection score.

Training the New Helper

DVD or VHS / 1 Hr. 5 Min.
#115 $65.00
<http://leerburg.com/115.htm>

This video is intended for the person that has never done agitation or helper work before. If you have a friend, relative, or club member that wants to learn how to take bites, this video is the place to start. It is not a dog training video, it is a video for training people.

It begins with selecting the type of dog to use with new helpers. There is also a short section on the equipment that is needed for this training.

The video begins by teaching the new helper how to take escape bites. The escape is broken down into 6 incremental parts. Each part is examined in slow motion and discussed in great detail. There are numerous examples by helpers, demonstrating the correct way to do this exercise. There is also excellent footage of the most common mistakes new helpers make as they learn proper bite work.

The new helper then learns how to drive the dog. There is a section on the skip drive, and another on the running drive. We show new exercises to improve footwork without the dog. The helpers will learn how to put a dog in the pocket and keep him there. This is followed by a section on taking bites out of the blind, and then re-attack work. These are the most basic of skills, but they are fundamental to all future helper training.

Training the Trial Helper

(Advanced Helper Work)

DVD or VHS / 2 Hrs.
#116 $65.00
<http://leerburg.com/116.htm>

This training video was made with the help of Tom Rose and has detailed, step by step training sections. We show exercises that teach helpers footwork for the courage tests, and advanced defensive work with dogs. We detail step by step training sequences that all helpers should work through to develop smooth, frontal catches. We show the correct way to administer stick hits, both from a technical standpoint, and from the judge's viewpoint.

Throughout the video we stress that good helper techniques result in safer work for the dog. Poor helpers hurt dogs. We have set up and filmed some dramatic examples to show what bad timing can do. It is our feeling that this video is going to educate a lot of competitors, handlers, and trainers on advanced helper work.

Poor helper work in training has broken more teeth on good dogs than we would like to think about. This video will teach you techniques to eliminate unnecessary accidents.

If you are a police officer or personal protection trainer, you should get this video. Police helpers need to learn how to do this work properly. Tom is a Schutzhund judge. We reflect what a judge expects from a trial helper and identify the most common helper errors.

This training vest is imported from Europe. The nylon vest has leather shoulder pads along with numerous front and back pockets for tracking lines, tracking articles, tugs, balls, gloves, and anything else you may need in training your dog. There is a large pocket in the back and a drawstring waist. It is a super training vest. It is perfect for police K-9 officers to wear over uniforms when they train.

There are two Ring Organizations in Belgium. The "NVBK" and "La Societe Royale Saint Hubert." In 2001, I traveled to Eisdan, Belgium and filmed the NVBK Category 2 Championships.

The winner of the 2001 competition was Bart Ballon. Bart is a popular trainer in Europe and around the world. He is known for his seminars (some with Helmut Riaser) on training with electric collars. It is evident by watching his winning performance that he is one of the top dog trainers in the world.

While there are many similarities between the two ring organizations, there are also clear differences. To begin with, all of the St. Hubert dogs (Malinois) are registered dogs, while the majority of NVBK are non-registered dogs.

Both organizations have standardized obedience exercises that do not change from event to event, neither organization has tracking. But both have non-standardized protection routines, which means the competitors do not know what the exact exercises are until the day they arrive. This means that the dogs must go through a great deal of training to be prepared for what the judges set up for the bite work. The helper at this year's event was outstanding. He was one of the best ring helpers I have seen at any ring event.

If you have an interest in Belgian Malinois and have always wondered about the differences between the two Malinois organizations in Belgium, watch a couple of these videos and you will learn the differences between the two.

Mondio Ring 1988, Tournai, Belgium

DVD ONLY / 1 Hr. 25 Min.
#512-D $24.00
<http://leerburg.com/512.htm>

The Mondio Ring is gaining in popularity in America. It translates into "WORLD RING." It is a combination of the French Ring Sport, the Belgian Ring Sport, the KNPV, and SCHUTZHUND. It came about as a result of a desire for a dog sport that all the people of Europe could compete in. The sport is difficult for SCHUTZHUND dogs and KNPV dogs. The reason is that the Belgium ring is much more intense, and the French helpers are the fastest in the world.

This video was filmed in 1988 in Tournai, Belgium. Tournai is on the French border near Lille, France. This video is packed with action. You really need to see this to believe what some of these dogs are capable of doing. I have included the most exciting portions of Mondio, in addition to portions of the demonstrations from the Belgian Ring, the French Ring, and the Dutch KNPV. You will see a helper do bite work on his back in a small swimming pool. You will see a dog go through a wall of fire to take a bite. You will see a dog guard an article (when the article is a small girl).

This is the first video of the Mondio Ring. In it you will see the famous Malinois, "BEBBA". He is the highest scoring dog in the history of the Mondio Ring, and certainly one of the finest Malinois to ever live. The Mondio Ring is the most difficult dog sport in the world. As a rule, dogs that come from the Mondio Ring Sport make the best police service dogs.

This is a video that fascinates people. If you have seen other interesting demonstration videos I will say this, "You haven't seen anything until you have seen the Mondio Ring".

This year's winner (1998) was from Belgium and the second place dog was from Switzerland.

There is an excellent section on the FRENCH RING SPORT using a Malinois which is one of the French National Ring Champions. The helper is Daniel Grutter, one of France's best. I have edited the video to explain what the exercises consist of and what the point structure is in the competition.

Training Techniques for the French Ring

DVD or VHS / 1 Hr. 45 Min.
#107 $65.00
<http://leerburg.com/107.htm>

The French Ring Sport is a new and exciting working dog sport that has come from France. Through it we are exposed to the cutting edge of bite work training.

The French Ring Sport is one of the most demanding working dog sports there is. The French helpers are the most INTENSE in the world. If a dog can work against a good French helper he can work against any helper, any place, any time.

The French have developed leg biting into an art form. We show how they break leg bites into incremental parts and then train the parts. When the parts are trained, we put them all together for the finished product.

The stick used in the ring is a 1-inch thick piece of bamboo that has been split down the middle several times. Some people call it a "clatter stick" (because of the noise it makes when it vibrates). This noise alone will send all but the best dogs running back to their handler. In Schutzhund, a dog is hit twice in an attack. I have footage of a dog taking over 50 hits with a stick in less than a minute. This tape shows you how to use the stick and train a dog to work under it.

In the video we show some of the advanced ring exercises. You will see the training steps involved in the; GUARD THE ARTICLE, the BACKWARD HEEL TO WARD OFF A REAR ATTACK, FOOD REFUSAL, and HOW TO WORK UNDER GUN FIRE.

Training Sheep Herding Dogs with Karl Fuller

DVD or VHS / 1 Hr. 25 Min.
#505 $65.00
<http://leerburg.com/505.htm>

In 1985, I saw my first HGH Nationals in Europe. This is the type of sheep herding German Shepherd dogs do best. It is also the style of training the AKC has based their herding instinct testing, and course "C" on. I originally felt that the dogs did this work so naturally that they had to be doing it from instinct and not training. I was wrong. Since then I have collected enough information from Karl Fuller of Kirschtal Kennels in West Germany to produce this video.

Karl Fuller has won West Germany's HGH nationals 7 times. He has bred more HGH Siegers and Siegrens than any other breeder. The training concepts in this video are a result of the time Karl has generously spent with my friends and I.

The Continental or Tending style of sheep dog training was developed in the areas of Europe where there are few fences and specific fields that could be grazed. The Tending style is totally different than what most people think of when they see Collies work sheep. Collies drive sheep from behind and cut sheep from the flock. In the Tending style, the sheep are trained to follow the Shepherd and come when called. The dogs act as a living fence to keep the flock in the fields, the Shepherd wants them to graze. Our video shows that while genetics improve performance, systematic step by step work produces a well trained sheep herding dog.

The German Shepherd Dog Club of West Germany (SV) sponsors a small but active group of people (about 5,000) who train their dogs to herd sheep. They have a final competition (Bundesleistungshuten) at the end of every year. This video was filmed in Asslar, West Germany. It is a documentary that explains what exercises are in the competition and how they are scored.

An Introduction to All Breed Herding

by Lynn Leach

43 Min.
DVD #505B-D $45.00
VHS #505B $39.00
<http://leerburg.com/505b.htm>

This is an excellent video. It's one of the first dog training videos that we sell which has not been produced by Leerburg®. The videos I produced were on the tending style of sheep herding. This video deals with training dogs to gather and move sheep.

What makes this video so interesting is that it incorporates 19 different breeds of dogs. You will see how the "strong eyed dogs work" and "loose-eyed dogs work". The strong eyed dogs are the Border Collie and the like. While loose eyed dogs are Rots and Cattle Dogs etc.

The sections of this video are :

1. Introducing new dogs to sheep
2. "Fix-it" ideas for common problems
3. Instinct tests and how to bring out the drive to herd
4. Flight zones and how to control them
5. Learning to work as a team with your dog
6. Negotiating obstacles
7. The skills required for early trial work
8. What's next

All Breed Herding The Next Step

by Lynn Leach

43 Min.
DVD #505C-D $45.00
VHS #505C $39.00
<http://leerburg.com/505c.htm>

"The Next Step," picks up where the first video finishes. It is 59 minutes long, and begins with ideas to slow your dog down, which includes the progressive training of the 'stop' command. Advanced training becomes much easier if your dog will hold a 'stay' while the handler moves off of the balance point.

The video goes on to teach respect of the flight zone and a straight walk-up. These skills were touched on in the first video, and have now been defined in an organized manner so that you can prepare a training plan and move on to the next level.

"The Next Step," then demonstrates drills to extend and widen the outrun, followed by trial skills including take pens and freestanding obstacles, and introducing driving.

The feedback received only confirms the integrity of Lynn's teaching methods: "There are quite a few herding videos out there, and this one is the best herding video yet."

The Theory of Corrections in Dog Training

By Ed Frawley

One of the most misunderstood areas of dog training, by beginners and so-called professionals alike, is how and when to correct a dog. The lack of understanding of corrections is where most people get into trouble in dog training.

Unfortunately, in the past 20 years, we have seen a movement in dog training that promotes motivational methods to train dogs, but doesn't encompass corrections. The people who teach these programs do a dis-service to the art of dog training.

When new pet owners first learn to train, they think corrections are either: a verbal reprimand, a jerk on the leash, or putting the dog in the bedroom for inappropriate behavior. For some dogs this is enough, but for those who wish to take their dog to a higher level of performance this is not adequate.

The wrong kind of correction, a correction at the wrong point in time, or the lack of a correction is what gets people in trouble. This article will explore the world of corrections in dog training.

My hope is that by explaining the theory behind the various forms of corrections owners will become better educated and therefore better dog trainers. Through this article you will find that I am not a fan of forced training. But with this said, you will also learn that to ignore corrections during training or to use the wrong correction at the wrong time can actually set your training back and possibly destroy the bond between you and your dog.

To understand corrections we must first explore the goals that different trainers have for training their dogs.

Some trainers follow the theory that "the end justifies the means." These people use a lot of force when they train a dog. This is a common approach for many professional dog trainers. These people must accomplish a great deal within a short period of time or they can't make enough money to justify the time spent in training a customer's dog. I am not a fan of forced training which is why I am not a fan of sending dogs off to a professional trainer.

My goal in training is to teach my dog to first trust me and then when that's done, to follow my voice command. In the "trust phase" of training the dog learns that I am fair but firm. My dog sees that I treat it with respect and expect respect in return. It learns that above all I am consistent and when I ask him to do something he must do it. You can get a better understanding of how I approach dog training if you read the article I wrote on my "Philosophy of Dog Training."

Some people confuse the bond with a dog and what I want to call trust. Many interpret a bond as being a relationship of love and that's not what I look for in my dog. A dog can love you and not respect you. I can't have a relationship with a dog without having respect from that dog.

Getting a dog's respect is not something that happens overnight. The trust phase can take months. The DVD I produced titled "Building Drive and Focus," teaches the foundation for this phase of training.

Corrections vs. Forced Training

There is a difference between giving a correction in normal training and forcing a dog to comply. This article will explore both areas.

While I am not a fan of forced training I understand it. Unfortunately in my career I have used forced training and I now regret doing so. Maybe in some small way this article is written as an apology to my past dogs that deserved better than I gave them.

While this article will explain the various methods used to force a dog to comply, I am only doing this with the hope that readers will recognize these methods if they see them in a local obedience class or if a professional trainer that's hired to solve a problem uses too much force. I hope new trainers will be willing to walk away from these environments because they know there is a better way.

Formal Obedience Training vs. Pack Behavior

First let us examine the difference between corrections used in obedience training and corrections used for inappropriate pack behavior.

If you have my "Basic Dog Obedience" DVD you will have heard me say that you never correct a dog in formal obedience training unless you are 100% sure that dog knows the meaning of the command he is refusing to follow. There are not a lot of rules in dog training but this is one of them for obedience training.

With this said, a dog can receive a correction for inappropriate pack behavior even if you have never trained the correct behavior. Dogs instinctually understand pack behavior. I will explain this later in the article.

Pups and Corrections The Beginning of Pack Behavior

A pup learns to respect his mother from the early days of its life. This is the beginning of the pup understanding the concept of a pack leader and rank within the pack.

When pups are 3 ½ to 5 weeks old many mothers will begin to growl when pups come near her food. When she growls or even nips a pup she is teaching them respect. Littermates also bite one another during their play. This play biting establishes rank within the pack. The stronger members bite and fight harder than lower ranking members.

When pups move into our human environment they expect their life will continue just as it did within the litter. That's why pups bite hands, socks, ankles and kids. They are playing just like they did with littermates. This play is also used to test their rank within their new human pack. They are doing it in the only way they know how – with their body postures, with their voice (through barking and growling) and with their mouths (by grabbing and biting).

When human owners correct this biting behavior the pup accepts them as their new pack leader. Just as the pup accepted their mother's position of authority when she growled or nipped them for coming too close to her food bowl.

It's not difficult to correct a pup for play biting behavior. It is difficult for novice pet owners to correct a puppy at a level that does not permanently damage its temperament. These owners don't understand how easy it is to cause permanent damage to a pup by over correcting. One hard correction can have a life long effect on a soft puppy.

Fifteen years ago when I was breeding some very hard puppies I wrote an article titled "Teaching Your Puppy the Meaning of the Word NO." In it I recommended grabbing the pup (when it was biting you or a family member) by the nap of the neck and shaking until it squealed like a pig. Well that advice was wrong. It worked for my pups because they were hard pups and recovered quickly from a correction (and handler mistakes). Soft puppies could have some serious problems with this treatment.

Today, I recommend that we can get the point across with most (not all) pups by simply grabbing a pup firmly by the scruff of both cheeks and firmly holding them as we stare into their eyes and firmly warn them to "KNOCK IT OFF". You could even growl at them until they submit (just as their mother did).

Shaking them until they squeal like a pig only scares them and does nothing to build the relationship.

Pack Behavior

So, with all this said, what are pack behaviors?

1. When a dog jumps up and/or humps your leg, that's a pack behavior.
2. When a dog charges past you to get out the door, that's a pack behavior. Pack leaders go through doors and gates first.
3. When a dog barks like crazy at another dog that's a pack behavior.

4. When a dog drags his owner down the street on a walk – that's pack behavior. Pack leaders always go first.

5. When a dog tries to fight with another dog, that's a pack behavior. Pack leaders say when and who to fight.

6. When a dog growls for moving it aside when you get in your bed or on your furniture. That's pack behavior that needs to be dealt with.

7. When a dog growls at you for disturbing it as you walk by as it sleeps that's a problem with rank behavior in the pack.

This is the short list of just a few of the most common forms of pack behavior. It provides an example of pack behavior issues that deserve corrections even though the owner has never trained them. I deal with pack behavior corrections in a section near the end of this article.

So while you would not correct a dog for not coming when called until after you have taught the meaning of the word COME, you can justifiably correct a dog either verbally or with a training collar for inappropriate pack behavior (i.e. getting on the bed or growling at you).

Let there be no misunderstanding, formal obedience means teaching the dog the meaning of sit, come, stay, lay down or go to your place and lie down. Don't correct a dog for not following these commands until you are 100% sure in your mind that your dog understands the meaning of what you are asking him to do.

Training Collars

To understand corrections we need to first understand the tools used to give a correction. Corrections are either given with a voice correction or a collar correction.

By definition a collar cannot be called a training collar unless it is able to administer a correction to a dog.

In my opinion there is a huge misunderstanding of training collars used on dogs today. As far as I am concerned there are only 4 kinds of training collars.

1. A flat leather or nylon buckle collar
2. A prong collar
3. A dominant dog collar
4. A remote trainer (electric collar)

Some soft dogs only need correction from a flat collar (refer to my article on hard and soft dogs). In fact, many soft dogs only need a voice correction to make them hit the ground and crawl on their belly.

When owners of soft dogs recognize the temperaments in their dog they find that these dogs become easy dogs to train. Unfortunately most novice trainers can't read temperament which results in over correcting. This only results in nervous insecure dogs that submissively urinate or worse show fear aggression.

Training Dogs to Get Along with Horses

DVD ONLY / 2 Hrs. 45 Min.
#211-D $40.00
<http://leerburg.com/211.htm>

Many people who love dogs also love horses. Cindy and I fall into this category. Some of us are lucky because our dogs get along with our horses. Not everyone is this lucky though, some dogs are either aggressive to horses or they have such a strong prey drive they can't seem to stop themselves from chasing the horses.

This DVD will help provide those people with enough information to find a solution to their problem. There are so many variables in this work that there is no SINGLE training method that can be used on every dog. Dogs are pack animals. Some dogs simply need to understand that the horses are part of the family pack. Once this is accomplished the dogs accept the horse as a pack member the problems go away. My DVD explains how to accomplish this.

Some dogs simply lack proper obedience training. While my "Basic Dog Obedience" DVD covers this I explain how important proper obedience is in this DVD. These people are advised to get our "Basic Dog Obedience" DVD along with this DVD.

Some dogs are just aggressive to horses. They simply don't like them and will try and attack any horse they see. The way to train with dogs like this is to learn how to control the dog. No one can take the hate out of these kinds of dogs but we can teach the dog that we are the pack leader and it must control its aggression or suffer the consequences. These dogs often need to be trained with a remote collar. While this

DVD is not a electric collar training DVD, I do cover the basics and explain a few safe training steps on how we start a dog we have with this problem. People with serious aggression problems may need this DVD along with the DVD I did titled, "Remote Collar Training For the Pet Owner."

The DVD has the following chapters:

1. Introduction
2. Introducing Puppies to Horses
3. Equipment
4. Introducing to the Remote Collar
5. Desensitizing Dogs to Horses
6. Dogs that Chase Horses
7. Groundwork for the Down
8. Riding with Your Dog
9. Appi Camps in Holland
10. Out Takes

We prefer to train our dogs (and horses) by first developing a bond with the dog and then using that bond of trust to guide the dog into the behavior we desire. Once an dog has learned to trust and respect us as their pack leader training is always quicker and easier.

This DVD is a "Dog Training DVD" not a "Horse Training DVD". For one reason or another some horses are dog aggressive. It is not unheard of for a horse to kill a dog (this recently happened to a relative of one of our secretaries). While the end result of our training may help to get your horse used to being around dogs, it's not the intent of this DVD to train dog aggressive horses.

In closing I like to tell people that dog training is not breed specific, it's temperament and drive specific. That means that our methods work for all breeds of dogs.

Body Bite Suits

Custom Made

The Finest Quality Suit in the World

There are so many poor quality suits being sold I have decided to again import and sell suits. My suits are being made to my specifications in Belgium. I have not seen a suit sold in this country that comes close to the quality of workmanship in this product.

The craftsmen who make my suits have been willing to work with me to come up with a suit that is designed for police work. A police department has different needs than sport people. The average helper in police work does not have a lot of experience in doing helper work. We have added additional protection for these people.

The bite suit is made of 65% cotton and 35% nylon. The inside is felt lined. There is extra padding in the arm pit area, across the back, and in the legs. This has resulted in about 10 more pounds of protection than suits sold by American suppliers.

If you go to Europe you will find there are many different styles of bite suits. There are suits for the French Ring Sport, the KNPV sport, and even IPO suits. My suits are designed for police service and personal protection training. My suit provides maximum protection in the arms, shoulders, and upper back along with the legs.

All bite suits are special order for a custom fit to your body. It takes 7 to 10 weeks for delivery time.

<http://leerburg.com/785.htm>

This Young Dog Sleeve is the first arm that should be used in bite development. It is softer and easier on young puppies' teeth and mouths. Should be followed with either the Intermediate Soft Sleeve or Jute Puppy Sleeve. Imported from Europe.

Jute Puppy Sleeve

Jute Puppy Sleeve #876-1 $ 105.00
<http://leerburg.com/876.htm>

For those trainers who prefer jute to synthetic linen. This Puppy Jute Sleeve is designed to bridge the gap between a soft sleeve and a hard arm. Shoulder cuff is included. Imported from Europe.

Intermediate Soft Sleeve

Intermediate Soft Sleeve #860 $ 135.00
<http://leerburg.com/860.htm>

The name for this sleeve can be misleading. This sleeve is made from very durable synthetic material (the same as the material used in body bite suits.) In fact, it is similar in design to a sleeve off of a body bite suit. This Intermediate Soft Sleeve is also strong enough to be used with adult dogs, and older puppies. Reinforced stitching in bite area. Imported from Europe.

Hidden Sleeve

Hidden Sleeve #861 $ 95.00
<http://leerburg.com/861.htm>

For the final stages of bite training, following a hard arm. Designed to be worn under the helper's clothing. Dogs get used to biting an arm or sleeve that is visible. The hidden sleeve teaches them to bite even if they don't see an arm. Used in police K9 training also. Reinforced stitching. Imported from Europe.

Jute Sleeve Cover with Handle

Jute Sleeve Cover with Helper Pads

Jute Sleeve Cover with Handle #773 $ 35.00
 Jute Sleeve Cover with Pads #1071 $ 45.00
 Hard Arm #807-2 $ 150.00

This arm has a bite bar to facilitate working with young adult dogs. This is the type of arm that is used in Schutzhund trials. The arm does not come with a sleeve cover which is sold separately. If you are new to protection training, this sleeve will not be used on dogs that are younger than 12 months old. Normally a dog has to be at least 12 months for his head and jaw to be big enough to go around this sleeve. The Jute Sleeve Covers are to protect and add life to your Hard Arm. It is better to buy a new cover than a new Hard Arm. This Hard Arm is of superior quality and construction. Imported from Europe.

In my video "Preparing Your Dog for the Helper," I teach how a handler does all the work in bite development through games he plays with his dog. The bite pillow is a very important part of this training. It's used in the training step after the tug work. If you have a young dog you should have this item. The Mini Bite Pillows are made of synthetic body bite suit material. All bite pillows are imported from Europe.

SPORT SERIES

Sport Basic G3 (<http://leerburg.com/sportbas.htm>)
The new Sport Basic G3 has 10 levels of momentary and continuous and a new buzz sound. The collar has the ability to control up to three dogs by simply purchasing additional receivers. The new aversive buzz sound can be used to condition the dog so that it responds in many instances to the buzz sound without using any electrical stimulation. The Sport Basic G3 is very simple to operate and is a perfect entry level product.

Sport Upland G3 (<http://leerburg.com/sportup.htm>)
The new collar has 10 levels of momentary and continuous and the ability to control up to 3 dogs whereas the Sport 65 only has 6 levels of momentary and continuous and comes in only a single dog model. Given that many hunters use more than one dog to hunt, this new multi-dog function should be a big hit with customers. Don't forget that this multi-dog function is "customer expandable" in the field by simultaneously pressing and holding a button on the transmitter and a button on the additional receiver for a few seconds.

Sport Combo G3 (<http://leerburg.com/sportcom.htm>)
The new collar has up to 20 levels of momentary and continuous and a tone. Sport Combo is field expandable up to 3 dogs. One of the really nice features of this product is that the customers can tell exactly what operating mode they are in, what dog they are controlling and what stimulation level is being used by simply looking at the dials on the transmitter. Also, all the customer has to do to change operating modes, dogs and/or stimulation levels is move a switch.

Tri Tronics® Bark Limiter^{XS}

Tri-Tronics Bark Limiter #815 $ 110.00
<http://leerburg.com/815.htm>

The Bark Limiter is much smaller, lighter and still the most effective and reliable bark collar on the market. It provides very gentle but persuasive control of excessive barking. The Bark Limiter can be worn by even the smallest dog. The Bark Limiter dimensions are approximately 1.8" wide, 1" deep and 1" high, without contact points installed. The Tri-Tronic® "Bark Limiter" is the most effective way to stop a dog's annoying bark. The collar is activated by vibrations from the dog's neck and not outside sounds. Barking is usually eliminated within 24 hours of putting the collar on your dog. Change the stimulation level with the press of a button. The "Bark Odometer" tells you how many times the dog barked since the collar was turned on. Five different stimulation levels. Short and long changeable contact points are included. Waterproof user-replaceable CR2 lithium batteries are included. Replacement batteries can be purchased at most retailers. One year warranty.

I call prong collars "Power Steering for Dogs." A prong is probably the most misunderstood training tool there is. So many people take one look at it and say "Oh!!! I could NEVER use that on MY dog!!!" Then when I explain how it's used and why it's used they call back and say "ED, THIS IS THE GREATEST THING!" When a prong collar is used in training, the handler must first realize that a dog who required a level 8 correction before will now, with a prong, probably require a level 2 or level 3 correction. So a strong dog with too much drive for a small person to handle is now easily controllable without a lot of effort. If you are a new Schutzhund trainer or a police service dog handler, you are going to need a prong collar. The advantage of the quick release is the use of the clamp to open and close versus opening a link to remove or put on the collar. The stainless steel quick release is a snap release, and the chrome plated quick release is a clamp release.

How to Fit a Prong Collar

<http://www.leerburg.com/fit-prong.htm>

I train dogs with prong collars. There are very few dogs that I would not train with a prong collar. I recommend them to new dog owners, new trainers and people who own dogs with behavioral problems. While some think a prong looks nasty the fact is they are far more humane than a normal choke collar.

The biggest problem with prong collars is that new dog owners don't know how to put them on, how to size them, or how to have their dog wear them. This article will address these issues.

Normal choke collars need to be ordered by length (i.e. 22 inches long etc.) Prong collars on the other hand are ordered by weight: extra heavy, heavy, light, etc. They all come in a standard length which is adjusted to fit the neck of the dog by removing or adding links to the collar.

Prong collars are meant to be put on and taken off before and after daily training sessions. Unlike a choke collar that is often left on the dog all the time (in some cases this can be a dangerous practice).

A common problem new trainers have is they don't remove enough links to get the correct snug fit. When that happens the collar hangs down on the dogs neck which results in the collar not working the way that it was designed.

This photo below demonstrates a prong collar that was not properly sized for the dog. The collar is too loose and riding too far down on the dog's neck. It should be up where I have drawn the yellow line.

The correct position for a prong collar is to sit right behind the dog's ears and up under the jaw line. This is shown in the photo below.

A perfect safety procedure to use along with a prong collar is a dominant dog collar. I offer this advise to ALL those trainers who use prong collars.

It is not unheard of for a mistake to happen and a prong collar comes apart when you need it the most. By having a dominant dog collar on the dog at the same time as the prong this will never be a problem. Simply attach the clip on the leash to both the prong and the ring on the dominant dog collar. This is shown in the photo below.

Leerburg's Amish Leather Products

Leashes, Collars, Harnesses, & Tracking Lines

Amos' horse and buggy

Over the past 25 years, we here at Leerburg have built a reputation for selling the finest leather dog leashes, the finest leather harnesses, and the finest leather dog collars in the world.

Our Leerburg leather products are strong enough to last a lifetime, but soft enough to be comfortable right out of the box. If you go to Petsmart or one of the dog food warehouses, and feel their leather products, you will find that their leather is thin and stiff. The leather in our dog leashes is thick, pliable and soft. It's comfortable on your hands and results in better training for your dog.

There are two reasons that our leather dog training products are as good as they are: 1.) The leather we use. 2.) The Amish harness makers who put our products together.

Where we get our leather, and how it is tanned, is our trade secret. We order 60 to 70 sides of beef leather at one time. These sides come out of Canada where some of the beef hides are thicker. We need this thicker leather for our 6 ft. dog leashes.

The leather is shipped to our tanning company here in the United States where it's processed. The reason our leather is so soft is because of the way it is tanned. Our tanner uses a mixture of tallow and oils that other tanners don't use. While this is important, the key to the leather's softness is how the hides are dried.

Once our hides have been oiled they are stretched on frames and put in a large room to air dry. This process takes up to 3 weeks. Other tanners run their hides through big heated dryers where their hides dry in a day or two.

Certain areas of Wisconsin have large Amish communities. Over the past 25 years I have developed a relationship with an Amish harness maker named Amos, who builds all of my leather products.

Amos and his sons are perfectionists. They take pride in what they do and appreciate the fact that I give them all of my leather business. While they are farmers and they work the land, they use my Leerburg leather work to help with their cash flow.

In the beginning, they use to make horse harnesses and raise chickens that were sold in Chicago. As time passed and our business grew, they stopped building these horse harnesses and they sold their chicken business to a neighbor. Now they only farm and make Leerburg dog training products.

The quality of Amos's workmanship has resulted in our reputation for the finest leather leashes in the world. When I go to Europe to film some of my training DVD's my dog training friends over there always ask me to bring them a supply of our Leerburg Leashes.

I have a couple of Amos's leashes that are over 20 years old. They are as strong as the day I got them and as pliable as a wet noodle. If you buy a Leerburg leash and take care of it (don't leave it out in the rain) it will last for many years.

I would include a photo of myself and Amos but the Amish do not allow posed photos. Amos and I have discussed this. He knows people snap photos of them without asking and there is nothing they can do about this, but he asked that I not take his picture.

Amos' sewing machine, notice how it has foot peddles.

Dominant Dog Collars vs. Muzzles

Many times people make the decision to use a muzzle on a dog when in fact they should be using a dominant dog collar and a muzzle or in some cases just a dominant dog collar. Muzzles often just cover a dogs problems and do nothing to solve an aggression problem. These people need to learn the difference.

Our dominant dog collars are designed specifically to deal with handler aggressive or dog aggressive dogs. If you have a problem with aggressive or dominant dogs I would recommend that you go to my article section and read what I have written about Dominant and Aggressive dogs at: <http://leerburg.com/articles.htm>. I also recommend that you get my DVD on Dealing with Dominant and Aggressive Dogs. <http://leerburg.com/301.htm>

More dogs are put to sleep every day for aggression problems than I care to think about. I am the first to agree that some dogs are beyond saving, but many of these dogs could have been retrained and saved.

Killing a dog should ALWAYS be a last resort. Using these collars can and will make the difference between having to put a dog down or ending up with a dog the owner can live with.

I recommend that you go to my web site and read the article on "How to Fit the Leerburg Dominant Dog Collar" at: www.leerburg.com/746.htm, and the DVD on "Dealing with Dominant and Aggressive Dogs" explains in detail how to use this collar and what dogs to use it on.

One of the nicest features of the German Shepherd dog is its coat. It's what we call home groomable. All you need are a few basic tools and the knowledge of how to properly use them. This training video gives you that information.

Our 25 minute video takes you step by step through the grooming, bathing, and drying process. The video breaks brushing down into 5 easy steps. We explain in detail how to use each of the grooming tools. We show you how to trim your dog's nails and how to properly clean the inside of the dog's ears. We show the proper way to bathe the dog and the correct way to dry and brush the dog after its bath.

The dog used in the video is Leerburg's® foundation stud dog, Natan Busecker Schloss. Natan has a full dense coat. You will see how a professional bathes and then grooms him. You will also see that this is not a difficult task. It's something every pet owner can learn to do with the help of this training video.

This video explains how to prepare and assist a bitch in whelping a litter of puppies. There is extensive video of females whelping pups. It tells the breeder exactly what needs to be done during the birth and throughout the first 8 weeks of a pup's life. Ed Frawley (the owner of Leerburg Kennel) has bred German Shepherds since 1978. He has bred over 350 litters. You will benefit from the practical experience he has gained in whelping this many litters.

This video takes you through the trials of dealing with sick puppies. It shows exactly how to tube feed a weak puppy and it provides a medical program to follow for the entire litter.

If you thought breeding dogs was a simple matter you may change your mind after watching this video. We constantly have people tell us that they watch this video before, during, and after a litter is whelped.

How to Tattoo Your Puppies

DVD or VHS / 35 Min.

#411 $30.00

<http://leerburg.com/411.htm>

I personally prefer to tattoo my pups versus putting a computer chip in them. There are too many kinds of computer chips, and each needs its own chip reader. Anyone can look in the ear of a dog and see that it is tattooed. If anything, I would recommend both a chip and tattoo. This DVD can be yours for free when you purchase the complete set of Hauptner's Tattoo Equipment (See Below).

Hauptner Tattoo Equipment

Hauptner is without a doubt the best dog tattoo equipment in the world. It is manufactured in Germany and is the only tattoo equipment used by all the breed clubs in Europe and in America (i.e. the SV, DOBS, ADRK, SchH USA.) The quality is in every penny spent. (Prices may fluctuate.)

LEERBURG® ALL-NATURAL DOG FOOD

Dehydrated Raw Dog Food

We are pleased to introduce a unique and innovative approach to canine nutrition: delicious, nutritious, wholesome, colorful meals, ready to prepare and serve at home.

Verve, Force and Embark are gently dehydrated without extrusion or intense heat processing, to remove only the water and preserve the vital nutrients that are present in the raw ingredients. These are the first ever, prepare-at-home diets to offer complete convenience, nutritional balance and exceptional quality and value.

These are synergistic blends, bursting with naturally occurring enzymes, vitamins, minerals, amino acids, essential fatty acids and photonutrients, as well as healthy fats, protein and fiber, all the fuel dogs need to lead a healthy life.

Our products are guaranteed 100% human-food-grade because they are not produced in a pet food plant. We even have permission to say so on our labels. They are made in an FDA approved, human-food-producing facility in Southern California, that makes the very same foods you eat.

Our foods contain absolutely no "Red Flag" ingredients: no by-products, added salt or sugar, chemical preservations, artificial colors or flavors and no beet pulp, rice, wheat, corn, or soy. These are common allergens for dogs and can cause GI Upset, dry, itchy skin, hair loss or dullness, lack of energy, chronic ear problems and chewing at the feet.

All three recipes contain the following human-grade vitamin-mineral premix: Tricalcium Phosphate, Choline Chloride, Vitamin D3 Supplement, Vitamin E Supplement, Iron Amino Acid Chelate, Zinc Amino Acid Chelate, Potassium Iodide, Potassium Chloride, Copper Amino Acid Chelate.

One cup of dehydrated food will hydrate to make about 1 lb. of fresh food. A 4 lb. size holds about 17 dry-cups and makes about 17 lbs. of fresh food. A 10 lb. size holds about 43 dry-cups and makes about 43 lbs. of fresh food.

We at Leerburg® Kennels have changed the way we feed our dogs. Over the past 25 years of breeding and raising dogs I became more and more concerned about health issues that I saw in my dogs. I believe that we are what we eat and when I researched the ingredients of commercial dog food, I made the decision to feed an all natural diet. By that I mean that I only feed human grade ingredients and I fortify meat and vegetables with human grade supplements. The results have been dramatic. My dogs are healthier, they are more muscular, and have more energy. There has been a dramatic improvement in the temperament of the dogs.

The patrol dogs were GSDs, and their job was to go in front of the night patrols with their handlers as "point man," to detect personnel ahead of or on the sides of the patrols. This task they accomplished time and time again. Then earned the motto: "We Own the Night." The dogs are trained in Norway at The Norwegian Military K-9 Sentry.

Leerburg® Kennel Breeding Program

German Shepherd & Belgian Malinois Puppies

Here at Leerburg® we breed German Shepherd Dogs and Belgian Malinois (under the kennel name Kaiserhaus). We pride ourselves in breeding dogs with correct structure, good drives and excellent nerves. If you buy a dog from working bloodlines, you can do with it what you please. Our goal is to consistently produce puppies that have the drives, nerves and temperament to become police service dogs, search & rescue dogs, personal protection dogs, or dog sport competitors. Our dogs also make great family dogs, which is one of the MOST important jobs any dog can have.

As a breeder, you must choose certain traits to focus on in your breeding program. Thirty years ago Ed chose to concentrate on sound nerves and exceptional drives. It has been his life's work studying working German Shepherd bloodlines. He has traveled the world to study these bloodlines and was one of only two Americans allowed into East Germany on DDR dog business.

Cindy Rhodes manages the Leerburg and Kaiserhaus breeding programs. She has trained and competed in AKC obedience and Schutzhund since the mid-eighties with several different breeds of dogs. Cindy was also an all breed dog groomer for over 15 years, worked as a vet tech and has ran obedience classes for pet owners. She had a small breeding program for working bloodline European Dobermans, German Shepherds and Malinois from 1989 to 2003 under the Kaiserhaus Kennel name, before moving to Wisconsin.

Please visit our website for photos, testimonials, and litter availability.

www.leerburg.com/knl1.htm

Cindy's favorite aspect of managing the breeding programs here is spending time with the puppies and evaluating the potential in each individual puppy. It's extremely rewarding to match that pup with a new owner and follow the progress as the dog grows up.

Our reputation speaks for itself. Read our customer testimonials on our website at <http://www.leerburg.com/litters1.htm>. These are unsolicited comments from people who have purchased Leerburg dogs. We offer lifetime guidance and support for you and your new dog, as well as offering a 50% discount on all of our training videos for the first 6 months after the purchase of your new puppy or dog.

All of our puppies are selection tested before we place them in new homes. After 30 years and over 350 litters we are confident in our ability to pick the right puppy for each individual.

Ed and Cindy's experience in dog training and breeding insures that you get the puppy best suited for your lifestyle and goals.

If you have any questions about our available litters or upcoming breedings, please send Cindy an email at cindy@leerburg.com.
