Meet Ed & Jeff Frawley of Leerburg® Enterprises, Inc.

Leerburg Enterprises, Inc. is a family owned business that was started in 1980 by Ed Frawley. Ed has owned and trained dogs since 1960. He began breeding dogs in 1978 and producing training videos in 1980.

Cindy Rhodes began training dogs when she was 13. She has competed in AKC & CKC obedience and Schutzhund. In 1990, she competed in the USA SchH 3 Nationals with a Doberman female she raised from a puppy. She has bred Dobermans & Malinois under the kennel name Kaiserhaus since the late 80's. Cindy has raised and trained dogs of many different breeds, Belgian Tervuren, Shetland Sheepdog, Welsh Corgi, Doberman, Belgian Malinois and most recently, Border Terrier. Her sports of choice now are Mondioring and Agility. Cindy was also a professional dog groomer for 15 years.

Ed continued to breed working bloodline German Shepherds for 30 years and retired from breeding a few years ago so he could spend more time on Leerburg.

During the early 1980's Ed competed in AKC obedience and tracking competitions. In the mid-80's he competed in Schutzhund. He titled a number of dogs in these sports. In the late 80's he started training police service dogs and from 1990 to 2000 Ed was a K9 handler on the local Sheriff's Department.

Throughout the years Ed has continued to produce dog training videos; over 660 of which are still available on Leerburg's Video on Demand (600 plus are free streams).

In 1994, Ed went online with Leerburg.com. Leerburg was one of the first dog related web sites on the internet. It has grown into the largest dog training web site on the internet with over 16,000 pages. The Leerburg Webboard is a free dog training forum that has over 18,700 registered members and more than 355,000 searchable posts in its archives.

From the very beginning Ed's philosophy on selling dog related products was to only offer products he would use to train his dogs. He knew there were dog trainers that insisted on quality products and he chose to fill that niche. Leerburg has never tried to compete with the big box retail stores or the pet food warehouses of the world. Leerburg's reputation has been built on customer service and quality products.

Ed and Cindy have three sons. The oldest, Eric, lives in Houston and works in the commercial diving industry. The youngest, Andrew, left for basic training in the Air Force in the fall of 2012.

In October of 2011 Jeff Frawley, Ed Frawley's son, came to work here at Leerburg. After 7 1/2 years of military service, including tours in Iraq and Afghanistan, Jeff left the army. Jeff served in every position of an airborne infantry platoon with the 82nd Airborne from rifleman up to a squad leader. During his years of military service Jeff also spent time training cadets at West Point.

Jeff grew up here at Leerburg and has lived with dogs his entire life. He was even on the cover of one of our Leerburg catalogs 20 years ago when he was just 6 years old. When Jeff was 8 years old, his first job was at Leerburg, for $1 per hour, as chief socializer of puppies. When he was 10 years old, he began helping Ed in the kennel. By the time he was 14, he had helped deliver more litters of German Shepherd puppies than he can remember. During his high school years, Jeff went with Ed as a cameraman and filmed a number of training seminars and dog shows.

In addition to being Leerburg's new business manager, Jeff's responsibilities will include producing dog training videos and short commercials on Leerburg's products. We are very excited about the addition of Jeff to our Leerburg team.

What's New for 2013

2012 was a very exciting year for Leerburg. In February, we completed a major overhaul of our website. We were also fortunate to have Jeff Frawley get out of the Army after serving 7 1/2 years in the 82nd Airborne and return to Leerburg as our new business manager. Jeff brings a new level of excitement to the business. One thing the Army does right is teach their Sergeant's how to motivate and manage people. Jeff is certainly doing that for our business.

Along with these changes we also released 4 new training DVDs and updated a couple of our older DVDs with current information. We also added dozens of great new products to our inventory. We plan on making 2013 just as exciting.

There are currently plans in the works to bring The Michael Ellis School for Dog Trainers to Leerburg for one or two classes per year. We hope to host these courses in late winter and early spring. Our goal is getting people up here in the arctic tundra of Wisconsin ready to start training their dogs as summer comes around. We also feel that there are a number of people in the mid-west who would like to attend some of Michael's classes but can't make the trip to CA. We are in the early planning stages with Michael Ellis involving several new DVDs, one of which is on remote collars training and how to effectively implement collars into your training. The titles and concepts for new DVDs are always changing so we are not going to put any specifics in the catalog at this time. Be sure to check our website or newsletters often, as well as our Facebook page.

A fun new incentive to get viewers to come check out the website is a weekly give away for different DVDs and products. Anyone can sign up for the giveaway and no purchase is necessary. People who visit our web site can toss their email address in the hat once a day if they wish. This allows up to 7 chances per week to win. The drawing for this giveaway will be conducted every Monday and 1 lucky person will receive a random Leerburg product. We then empty the hat of last week's emails and the game starts all over again.

If you are new to Leerburg you can learn about our new training videos by subscribing to our newsletters. leerburg.com/subscribe.htm

Over the years, this DVD has been one of our most popular training videos for new puppy owners.

The first version of this video was produced in the late 1980's. The version we sell today is an updated production that was completed in late 2010. Over the years we find better ways to raise puppies. These ideas are passed on in the new releases of this DVD.

This training video answers all the questions new puppy owners have concerning the care of their new puppy. Ed Frawley has been breeding dogs since 1978.

Over the years Ed has been asked just about every question a new puppy owner can think to ask. This DVD was originally produced to be given to every Leerburg Puppy Customer. The intent was to help Leerburg Puppy Customers get through the first 8 months of the puppy's life.

Even though Leerburg bred German Shepherds, this new training video is not just a German Shepherd training tape. It is an all-breed video. "Your Puppy 8 Weeks to 8 Months" is sold to breeders all over the world who breed many different kinds of dogs. These breeders then give the video to their puppy customers. If you are a dog breeder, see leerburg.com/breeder-discount.htm for our breeder's discount.

The goal of this video is to teach people how to train their own dog to become a well mannered family pet. Our DVD was last updated in early 2007. It was originally produced in 1982 and has gone through a number of updates. With each release, it gets better and better.

The problem with taking your dog to obedience class is that the dog is expected to learn new commands under extreme distraction (i.e. when it is surrounded by 10 or 20 other dogs). This is not the correct way to train a dog. In fact, it's totally unfair to the dog.

There are four phases to dog training: the learning phase, the correction phase, the proofing phase, and the maintenance phase.

In the learning phase new commands should be introduced in a distraction free environment; like your kitchen or your back yard or an environment that the dog is used to living in. We teach new commands through positive motivation. During this phase we never correct the dog for not performing the command. It would be unfair to give a correction during this phase because the dog has not yet learned the meaning of the command.

When the dog has learned a command but then refuses to do it, it is time to move into the correction phase of training. This is where the dog learns that if it does not do what it is told to do, it will get a correction. Every dog is different; our video shows how to determine when to give corrections and what level of correction to give different dogs.

When the dog consistently performs obedience commands at home, it is ready for the distraction or proofing stage. During this phase we teach the dog that it must mind no matter where it is or what is going on around it. This means it must follow your commands when people come to your house, when other dogs are around, when on a walk, or when playing with toys.

Dog training never ends. It is in the maintenance phase of training that our dogs learn that we are always constant in our expectations. We show them that we always expect them to follow our commands.

We strongly recommend people establish pack structure before they begin formal obedience training. If you are a new dog owner your goal should be to create a calm submissive dog. The road to accomplishing this is explained in our DVD titled Establishing Pack Structure with the Family Pet. That is why we recommend that new dogs owners get both Basic Obedience and our Establishing Pack Structure DVD.

Every new puppy owner has the same image of what they want their new dog to be like as an adult. First and foremost, everyone wants a great relationship with their dog but beyond that, those who plan on keeping their dog in their home want a calm, well-mannered, obedient house dog that minds and respects their family and friends.

Those who plan on keeping their dog outside want a calm well-mannered dog that is respectful to the family and is quiet in the yard or kennel. They only want their dog to bark at strangers that come near the home. New dog owners think the road to success only involves obedience training and house training new puppies.

Don't get me wrong--puppies need to be house trained and they need obedience training--but these are only two small parts of a much larger program needed to produce calm, obedient, well-mannered, respectful house dogs that have a good relationship with their owners.

Let me give you a few facts to think about which will help make my point.

We start with the misconception of "how obedience training leads to a well-mannered house dog." The best training system there is involves multiple short training sessions throughout the day.

Training 4 or 5 times a day for 2 to 3 minutes in a session is much more effective than training one 20 minute session a day. Training 5 times a day for 3 minutes at a time is 15 minutes. What about the other 23 hours and 45 minutes in the day? What happens with those who happen to get a challenging puppy -- one that bites, barks, is a little wild or a little too independent?

Local obedience classes teach very specific behaviors: sit, down, come, stay, and walk on a leash. The problem with young puppies is they cannot and should not be expected to perform a behavior (like a down stay) for long periods of time. With training we can expect compliance for up to 30 seconds but not much longer.

We compare puppies to 2-year-old children. What do we expect in compliance from human babies? Not much. The same goes for our puppies. Many new dog owners totally miss this very valid point.

New pet owners are often told the road to a calm, submissive dog is to attend obedience classes and socialize their dog. We don't agree with this, in fact we think it's bad information.

All dogs are pack animals. Every breed of dog is hard wired with genetic pack instincts. The smallest Chihuahua to the largest Great Dane wants to live in a dog pack. They also genetically want to establish leadership and rank within their pack.

The road to a calm submissive dog is to first establish pack structure and leadership. Once leadership has been determined a dog can then be obedience trained.

I get hundreds of emails every week from people who have behavioral problems with their dogs. 99% of these problems are a direct result of owners who have failed to establish pack structure with their dogs.

Establishing pack structure means teaching the dog that he now lives in your family pack and that you are his pack leader. This process also teaches the dog that YOU set rules that he must live by. Once a dog accepts your leadership and your rules he becomes a calm, happy dog.

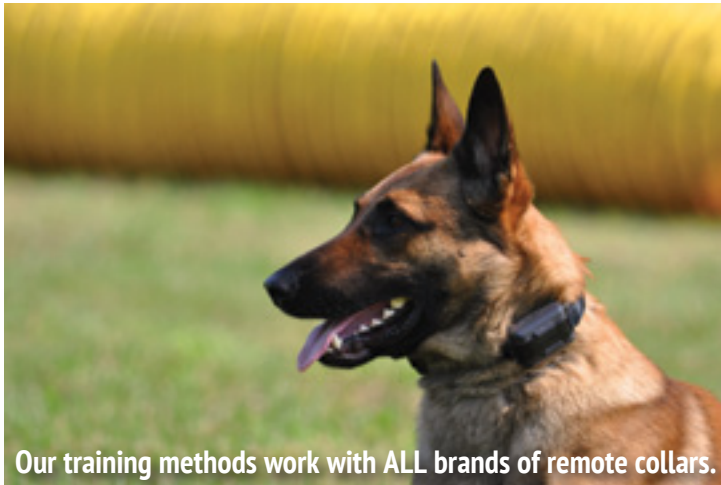

When a dog accepts a pack leader he is also more willing to listen and follow directions during obedience training.

This DVD will teach the way I establish pack structure with a new dog when I bring it into my home. The goal of my training is to establish leadership and still allow the dog to maintain his dignity. When I introduce my rules I do so in ways that create a level of communication and respect.

The information I show is based on my 45 years of experience in training, breeding over 350 litters of German Shepherds, competing in various sports, and working as a police K-9 handler for 10 years. I've established leadership with more dangerous dogs than I can remember. During this work I have never been badly bitten or even hurt by a dog.

When we establish a meaningful bond with our dog we will both wake up everyday wanting to spend time together. Do not ever underestimate the happiness this kind of relationship can bring to your life.

Until now there has never been a well done training video that teaches pet owners the concepts of how to train with an electric collar. In my opinion the videos that come with various manufacturers collars are terrible. Our DVD solves this problem and is not brand specific.

When used properly low level stimulation from a remote collar is one of the most humane methods ever developed to train dogs. I call it training with an invisible leash. There is a myth that stimulation from an e-collar involves pain. This is simply not true. The majority of the time the levels we use in training cause a sensation that gets the dogs attention but they do not involve any pain.

There are a number of old school theories of how to train with a remote collar. I explain these methods in my DVD and then tell you why the methods I offer are the best I have seen in 27 years of remote collar training.

The goal of all dog training is to teach our dog to follow a voice command. My training methods teach a dog that the stimulation from an e-collar comes from the owner and only after the dog refuses a known command.

Old school trainers make a dog wear the collar for a couple of weeks to condition the dog to collar training. I explain a much better way.

Our DVD also explains what a dog should know before starting e-collar training. It explains how to determine what level of stimulation your dog should be trained with. Every dog is different and every situation is different. I explain the concepts of using the collar and the protocol for taking a dog through each step or stage of this training.

There is also a section on using a remote collar to solve some behavioral problems, like dog aggression. The Basic Dog Obedience DVD is a recommended pre-requisite to this DVD.

Marker training (or clicker training) is one of the most profound systems of training dogs that I have seen in my 50 years of owning, breeding and training working dogs. I had been training dogs for almost 45 years when I started to learn this system. I felt like a kid in a candy store when I saw how well it worked and the attitude of my dogs that were being trained with markers. The fact is I still feel like that when I see dogs work with markers.

Dog training is a learned skill. The goal of this DVD is to introduce dog trainers to the details of training with markers. Trainers must understand the details of this system if they are to be successful. Once they grasp the concept and learn to apply it to their dog training they will create dogs that become problem solvers and dogs that love training. Once trainers learn how to apply the fundamentals of marker training the concept can be applied to any dog sport, including bite work.

You can get a feel for the content of this DVD by going to my web site and reading the article I wrote on The Power of Training with Markers (leerburg.com/markers.htm).

Marker training can be started on 8 week old puppies or 6 year old dominant rescue dogs. It is a purely positive method of training dogs that is 100% non-confrontational. That is one of the reasons it can work with dominant dogs. This system goes a long way towards building or repairing the bond between handler and dog.

While I sincerely believe that training dogs with the motivational methods of marker training is the best way to train a dog, I also believe that this work needs to be balanced by introducing corrections into the more advanced training. Purists would argue this point but in my DVD I discuss when and how certain dogs need corrections.

If you have trained dogs for years and think you are pretty good but you do not work with the marker system, I suggest you take a few days and study this DVD. You too may find a whole new method of K9 communication and it may re-ignite a fire in your belly to get out and train.

This DVD was completely redone and released at the beginning of 2013. This is the first DVD in the Building Drive and Focus Series with Michael Ellis. The foundation of Michael's dog training system lies in marker training. The power of his system lies in how markers are applied within his training program. Unlike trainers who claim they can train every dog with 100% positive motivational methods, we know for a fact that corrections should have a place in any serious dog training program. They are required to guarantee reliability under distractions. Trainers often talk about how to establish focus with a dog. Michael calls this work "engagement." He makes the point that the quickest way to teach a dog exercises is to first train a dog to get and stay engaged with his handler in every environment.

We show you how to take your dog out into new and distracting environments and have a dog that ignores the distractions and maintains an attitude of "What kind of fun things are we going to do here today?" When you can establish a relationship like this, you have a dog that is ready to learn behaviors and exercises. Stop for a minute and think about that statement. If your dog is distracted, if your dog doesn't want to be where he is, how are you going to train him to do anything? That answer is you only have two options: you either back up your training and engage the dog; or you revert to old school yank and crank dog training.

There are good reasons to teach positions correctly. We will explain long term benefits of the dog learning to sit, down and stand Michael's way. Michael will explain why training positions in the order he recommends will have positive effects throughout the training career of your dog whether you are training a pet or a high level competition dog. At the end of this DVD we explain the point where and why trainers should start to use toys as rewards in training.

This is the second DVD in the Building Drive and Focus series with Michael Ellis. The first DVD, The Power of Training Dogs with Food, (#220-D) and this DVD, teach new trainers how to establish the foundation of Michael's training system on their dogs. Once that is accomplished, the principles of Michael's system can be used to teach a dog any exercise.

Michael's system is based on marker training or operant conditioning. If you are new to markers or new to Michael Ellis' system of dog training, I would recommend you view the free 1 hour streaming video of Michael lecturing on his philosophy of dog training in the streaming video section of our web site. leerburg.com/flix/

You should also review the free 87 page eBook I wrote titled "The Power of Training Dogs with Markers." It's in the list of free eBooks on our web site. leerburg.com/dogtrainingebooks.htm

This DVD opens with Michael's lecture on why and how to play tug with your dog. Michael will demonstrate technique with his dog Pi and then the rest of the DVD uses untrained dogs and untrained handlers.

For the tug to be used as an obedience reward with your dog, you must have 3 things. Your dog must tug with enthusiasm, out when told to out on the first command, and bring the tug back after you release it. The goal of our video is to train dog handlers to accomplish these 3 things.

If your goal with your dog is to do competition obedience, agility work, or to get involved in one of the biting sports, playing tug the right way is an integral part for all those endeavors.

This is the latest in Leerburg's series of training videos done with Michael Ellis. It is a training video that follows Michael's curriculum for his course on Motivation and Play at his school for dog trainers in California. The work in this video teaches a trainer the advanced concepts of how to motivate a dog. The techniques work for dogs of all breeds both large and small, and can be used for any dog sport, including agility, obedience, and protection. The goal of this training is to teach dog trainers how to turn a reward into an event for their dog. Once trainers can learn these skills, they can manipulate the motivation and drive of their dogs.

The chapters for this training video are Moving Skills Without a Dog, Rewards as an Interactive Event, Techniques for Increasing Motivation, Borrowing Techniques From the World of Protection Sports, How To Manage Your Dog's Genetics, and Establishing Rules.

In Moving Skills Without a Dog, Michael introduces trainers to movement skills they can learn without their dog to help develop and increase a dog's motivation and drive. Trainers will learn about different types of drills they can use. He covers backing, lateral, line, luring, weight shifting and balancing drills. Trainers will also learn skills used without a dog, including tug and toy presentation, and how to handle, hold and deliver food. They will also learn why to use straight line targeting and the problems with hooking, why getting bitten is bad for the handler and the dog's motivation, and how and why misses happen.

Rewards as an Interactive Event covers how movement is reinforced during a reward, the difference between a reward event and normal behavior, the difference between hunger drive and movement-based prey rewards, and how the variable duration of a reward event affects reinforcement pause and attention. Trainers will learn how to use auditory stimulators to increase motivation and why chasing and searching are better than having. It also examines the behaviors of tugging, chasing, and eating.

In Increasing Motivation, Michael covers how to increase motivation using tools such as restraint and frustration, hunger, and social isolation. He also explains how to use patterns of arousal levels through classical conditioning, and examines which activities can intensify through rehearsal, and which ones don't. In addition, he explains how trainers can restrict and channel a dog's energy use, and which toys and treats are appropriate. He talks about violating a dog's expectations and whether or not to use food and toys in the same training session. He also covers how to balance possession without creating a conflict.

Borrowing Techniques From the World of Protection Sports includes an examination of techniques used in protection sports that can be applied here. Michael revisits the motivational techniques of restrain and frustration, using back pressure to build motivation, building the strike factor, targeting, and auditory stimulation. He also explains the concept of letting the dog win.

This is our third in the Michael Ellis series of training DVDs. We feel it's the best one yet. The training information in this video is revolutionary in the world of dog training.

Michael's motivational system of training dogs is based in marker training. You can visit the FREE streaming video section of our web site and listen to Michael's 7-part lecture on his method of dog training.

The foundation for the work in this focused heeling DVD is covered in the 9 1/2 hours of instruction featured in our two earlier DVDs, The Power of Training Dogs with Food and The Power of Playing Tug with Your Dog, that were done with Michael.

The old "yank and crank" methods of training heeling have gone by the wayside. The fact is a good portion of the training in this DVD can be done without a leash and without corrections. In fact, introducing corrections is the very last step in focused heeling.

A full outline of this DVD is available online.

We feel that the work in this DVD is revolutionary. I started going to competitive training seminars in 1974 and have never stopped. I have never been exposed to concepts that even come close to the work in this DVD.

Training dogs to give to pressure is revolutionary in the field of dog training. It teaches young dogs how to live with stress. The concept of "learning how to give to pressure" has been around for years in horse training, no one has introduced it into the world of dog training like Michael Ellis.

This DVD with Michael Ellis was finished in June of 2010. It is by far the most comprehensive step-by-step training DVD on teaching a dog to retrieve that we have ever seen. It has replaced both of our previous retrieval training DVDs.

If you are a student of marker training or interested in marker training you will love Michael Ellis' approach to this work. Because the system is founded in markers, there is a very minimal amount of force used in our training. It is our belief that a dog should not be force trained to retrieve.

We recommend the viewer have an understanding of marker training before beginning this work. This is all covered in the earlier DVDs we have done with Michael Ellis.

In our opinion, no one is ever going to reinvent a better training system on teaching a dog to retrieve than what we have detailed in this training DVD. Michael's system can be used for AKC obedience, for Schutzhund trainers, for any of the ring sport trainers and even field trial retriever enthusiasts.

The production of this DVD was finished in December of 2010. It's by far the best step-by-step training video on how to teach your dog to jump that we have ever seen.

Michael Ellis' system of dog training has its foundation in marker training (operant conditioning). When Michael teaches the jumps, it is all done through motivational methods, there are no corrections. The foundation for all of Michael's training is covered in The Power of Training Dogs with Food and The Power of Playing Tug with Your Dog. The work in these two DVDs gives trainers the tools they will need to reward their dog in any and every exercise they wish to train a dog. We recommend that trainers know and understand the foundation of food and tug training that's covered in 9 1/2 hours of these DVDs before attempting to teach their dog to jump.

In this jump DVD, Michael explains in detail how to manage your dog's drive during the jumping process. When handlers put their dogs in too much drive the dogs jump flat and have difficulty in jumping. This DVD explains how to determine how much drive your dog needs to learn to jump. Some lower drive dogs need to have their drive increased while high drive dogs need their training steps modified to allow them to concentrate on what you are asking them to do.

Once a dog has learned to jump with fluency and form, we then teach the dog to jump in high drive. Dogs need to learn how to jump when they are in drive during the long jump; during the retrieve over the jump; and during the palisade.

The fact is our jump DVD is 3 training DVDs combined in one. The largest chapter deals with training the hurdle. Then it is followed by a chapter on training the long jump and a chapter on training the palisade.

The Foundation of Puppy Bite Work with Michael Ellis

This DVD covers training puppies that are 8 weeks through adolescence. Adolescence varies from dog to dog. As general rule adolescence ends between 12 months to 16 months of age.

From a training standpoint we detail the work up through teaching a young dog to bite leg sleeves. So in reality this DVD teaches trainers how to train young puppies on up to young dogs that are 12 to 16 months old. At the end of the training in this DVD the dogs will be ready to go onto a body bite suit or they will be ready to learn advanced training skills and exercises that are needed in the biting dog sports.

I went to my first protection training seminar in summer of 1974 and can honestly say that the training in this DVD is the most in depth study on the foundation of bite training for puppies that has ever been done.

The video footage for this production has come from work with Michael Ellis that has been filmed over a 4 year period. We have dogs in this video that were filmed as 10 week old puppies that are 4 years old today.

Michael divides the life of a working dog into five different categories: Pre-Teething, Teething, Adolescent, Young Adult, and Adult.

In this 4 hour DVD, we will cover the foundation of bite work for the first three categories. We will cover, in step by step detail, the foundation of bite work with 8 week old puppies up through teaching adolescent dogs to bite arms and legs on leg sleeves.

The video opens with a lecture from Michael explaining his theory of the foundation of protection training puppies. He discusses the various temperaments of dogs and he talks about which dogs should and should not be trained. Michael does not believe in training dogs that are not genetically capable of doing the work. In fact, one of the chapters of the video shows dogs that should never be protection trained.

Teaching Protection Skills without a Decoy with Michael Ellis

Teaching Protection Skills without a Decoy is a 2 hour and 55 minute video has been in the works for about 2 years. For the last 10 years, Michael has given seminars 45 weekends a year. Many of the training groups and clubs that Michael taught did not have access to a regular decoy. Over the years Michael developed this training program that allowed his training groups to practice biting skills while he was gone.

Many of the members of these groups have gone on to get Schutzhund and Ring Sport titles. His system has been used on police service dogs, personal protection dogs and even Agility dogs. Many top Agility trainers are learning the value of teaching their dogs advanced tug skills.

This DVD is an in-depth, step by step study of Michael's system on establishing the foundation of biting skills without a helper or decoy. Trainers only need a friend or family member that will handle a bite wedge, a bite tug or a high value toy to assist them in rewarding correct behavior.

The value of the training methods we show are that the dogs learn correct behavior and capping skills at a lower drive level. In the training steps, Michael explains how to start the training for each skill. He also explains when to add drive and stressors for these various protection skills. When these things are done correctly the work with decoys goes much faster and with fewer mistakes.

This is the 6th DVD in our series of training videos that we have done with Michael Ellis. We assume that the people who want to learn the work in this video know and understand marker training (The Power of Training Dogs with Markers and The Power of Training Dogs with Food). We also must assume that the trainers who wish to do this work know and understand the concepts we teach in our DVD titled The Power of Playing Tug with Your Dog. The work in these 3 previous DVDs encompasses 13 1/2 hours of work. It would be impossible to include all that in this DVD.

Chapters include Training the Bark and Hold; Guarding Positions; Contact Heeling; Teaching the Back Transport; Teaching the Side Transport; Defensive of Handler; Foot Targets; Biting Techniques; Targeting Skills; Training Escort Positions and Cues; Training Recalls from a Bites; Environmental Conditioning; Search Behavior; Training the Out (Problem Solving); and Pre-Object Guard Skills.

The DVD opens with an excellent lecture on the concept and training steps for the send away by Michael Ellis. This lecture was filmed at Michael's school on advanced obedience in California. There is a chapter on working with puppies and a chapter on when to use touch pads vs. a toy. There will also be a chapter on training the whistle back (for the ring sports). There is an excellent section on retraining a Schutzhund dog to Michael's system of training the send away and an excellent chapter in which Michael reviews his system.

I enjoyed the production of this training DVD because I learned a lot along the way. Some trainers will think "How much can there be to training this exercise?" Well, let me tell you that Michael has included many, many training steps that cover different types of dogs. He discusses how you approach the training for the high drive dogs and he explains what trainers need to change in their training program to accommodate lower drive dogs.

The beauty of this training DVD is that it has something for the advanced trainer and as well as a step by step program that new trainers can follow.

The DVD contains information to help AKC trainers, Schutzhund trainers and Ring Sport Trainers.

The training concepts in this DVD follow Michael Ellis' training system which has its foundation in operant conditioning. If you are not familiar with marker training or if your dog has not gone through the foundation for Michael's training system, you should run your dog through the work, which is the first two DVDs Ed Frawley produced with Michael Ellis: The Power of Training Dogs with Food & The Power of Playing Tug with Your Dog.

The Foundation of Object Guard Training with Michael Ellis

In this 2 hour and 10 minute video, Michael Ellis teaches dog handlers the fundamentals of training the object guard for the various ring sports. The goal of the video is to show dog handlers how to establish a good foundation for this exercise.

The object guard is the most difficult exercise in all dog sports. In a competition the dog is left alone with an object while the handler moves out of sight. When the decoy approaches the dog guarding the object, the dog must bite on its own and release without an OUT command.

In this video, Michael will explain exactly what a dog should know before it starts object guard training. You will learn why Michael prefers to begin teaching this exercise at 7 to 9 months of age. We show the very first training sessions on a number of young dogs.

We also show the 3rd and 4th training lesson on Cindy's dog, Rush, and then the dog in training a year later.

Dogs that start object guard training later in life have often been exposed to a great deal of obedience. When that happens these dogs get "STICKY" – meaning they get stuck on the object and it becomes difficult to get the dog to leave the object to bite the decoy. This is demonstrated by showing a dog that isn't started until its 18 months old. You will see what happens when a dog "STICKS" and the training steps to help a dog get over the problem.

The end of the video shows Michael Ellis and his dog, Pi, in an actual Mondioring III competition doing the object guard.

This video will teach trainers how to establish a proper foundation for the object guard. It does not teach the advanced skills needed to finish a dog in this exercises. It can take years of hard work to perfect a dogs skill in the object.

How to Raise a Working Puppy

with Ed Frawley

1 Hour, 15 Minutes
leerburg.com/117.htm

DVD | #117-D $40.00
 Video on Demand | #S117 $35.00

There is a big difference between how one should raise a working puppy and how pet owners raise their pets. Working puppies are expected to look at their world with more self confidence. It does not make any difference if you are raising a Schutzhund puppy, a police service dog puppy, a puppy for personal protection work, or a puppy for competition obedience or agility. They can all benefit by making some simple changes in how they are brought up and handled.

This is not a bite training video. It is a video teaching people how we used to raise our pups here at Leerburg. This video outlines a step-by-step manner how to socialize, imprint, and prepare your puppy for his or her working career. This is a common sense approach that anyone can do. The key to raising a successful working puppy is to have a plan and make the best use of the time you spend with your dog. An example of this is: one can take their pup for a walk and have it just be exercised; or one can take their pup for a walk and make it an experience in which the pup gets exercise, along with a chance to learn MARKERS and be introduced to environments that provide a small level of stress for the pup to learn to work through.

This dog training DVD deals with the following topics:

1. Should the working pup be a house dog or a kennel dog?
2. Manage and neutralize a working pup to training collars.
3. Teaching a working puppy that a vehicle is going to be a part of its career.
4. Learning to be neutral to other dogs.
5. Socializing, or "neutralize," our pups to strange environments.
6. The manners of a working puppy.
7. It is very common for new trainers to over exercise their puppy. We cannot tell anyone exactly how much to exercise their pup, but we do talk about some of the guidelines that we take into consideration.
8. Medical issues and a working puppy. It is a given that a working puppy is going to be exposed to more examinations by a stranger (a Vet) than the average dog. We believe that a little forethought at an early age goes a long way towards eliminating a dog getting stressed over this as an adult.
9. Games and toys.
10. If you are raising a working puppy you are probably going to have a dog with a degree of drive. While this video does not show how to bring out that drive (my video Building Drive and Focus does that) - we do caution people that "JUST BECAUSE YOUR PUP CAN DO SOMETHING DOES NOT MEAN IT SHOULD DO SOMETHING."

Dealing with Dominant & Aggressive Dogs

While I have seen a number of books that define dominance, I have never seen a book, much less a DVD, that trains people how to properly deal with or train dominant dogs. If your dog is growling at you, your family members, your friends, or visitors to your home then you need to take steps to control this aggression.

Every year hundreds of thousands of dogs go through obedience classes. The majority of dominant dogs that go through these classes come out just as dominant as before they started. The reason for this is that instructors and owners do not address issues of pack drive and rank within the pack.

Our DVD was produced to help people analyze their dog's aggression problems. I then provide information to help owners solve these problems.

The vast majority of local dog behaviorists are unqualified to offer advice on dog aggression or dominance. Many think the solution to dominance and aggression is through positive motivation. These people are almost always wrong. The best solution is always through respect and leadership.

This DVD provides enough information to help dog owners either solve these problems themselves or be in a position to determine if a local individual is qualified to assist in their dominant or aggressive dog problems.

This DVD covers:

1. Types of dominance & the triggers that cause a dog to display dominance
2. Recognizing the signs of dominance
3. Living with and training a dominant dog
4. Problem solving
5. Picking a behaviorist

If your dog is becoming animal aggressive and you want to learn how to live with and control an aggressive dog this DVD will help you.

This DVD will cover how to prepare your dog for a competition. People have asked, "What kind of competition?" The answer is every type of dog sport competition. This new DVD will teach people who train with markers (conditioned reinforcement) how to wean their dog off food rewards and/or toy rewards in preparation for taking their dog into any dog sport competition. This is an extremely important skill to learn because to do it correctly and still maintain motivation and drive is an art form.

The DVD is also going to teach trainers how to introduce their dog to punishments. We will explain when it is appropriate and when it is inappropriate to use punishment. We will also explain how to approach this work based on the temperament and the drive of individual dogs. Internal dogs are trained differently than external dogs; hard dogs are trained differently than soft dogs. Trainers must learn how to tailor their training program according to the temperament, the genetics, and the drive levels of their dog.

Our training is directed to those who use a positive training system, or in other words, those who use a foundation of markers or clickers in their work.

DVD Outline

- 1) Introduction:
- 2) Definition of Terms
- 3) Rewards: Methods for reducing the rate/number of rewards. YOU NEVER ELIMINATE THEM.
- 4) Punishment: Types, concerns, and our philosophy on punishment (punishment is punishment!)

- 6) Tangents and topics of general interest.

I personally prefer to tattoo my pups versus putting a computer chip in them. There are too many kinds of computer chips, and each needs its own chip reader. Anyone can look in the ear of a dog and see that it is tattooed. If anything, I would recommend both a chip and tattoo. This DVD can be yours for free when you purchase the complete set of Hauptner's Tattoo Equipment (See Below).

This video is directed towards the dedicated dog breeder. It is an instructional video teaching people how to tattoo their own puppies. The video deals with Hauptner tattoo equipment from Germany. Hauptner makes the best tattooing equipment in the world for dogs. The video was filmed at a tattooing seminar in California. Debby Gundherr is the instructor. She has tattooed over 1,300 dogs in the past 10 years. She is also on the Schutzhund USA breed committee. During the seminar, Debby tattoos a litter of puppies. There is excellent video showing the exact procedure to follow. Includes a step by step review at the end of the video.

Hauptner is without a doubt the finest tattoo equipment in the world. Meant to last a lifetime. Used to tattoo puppies ears. Kevin Sheldahl has been involved in police service dog training for nearly 30 years. He has served as a police K9 handler, as well as an instructor. Over the course of his career he has trained over 200 police K9 handlers and dogs, from the beginning all the way to deployment ready. In addition to handling an operational dog, Kevin also certifies police service dogs for several major police departments throughout the country.

This DVD will take a look at police K9 certification standards and show how to convert them into a deployment standard. We will show how the certification standards that a police service dog must attain are used in a practical application. It is important that all police service dogs are trained for street deployment not simply for certification.

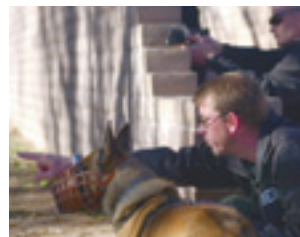

During the filming of this DVD we worked with approximately 30 operational police dogs and handlers from all over the country. We used a variety of dogs from a variety of departments. This allowed us to show the broad picture of what different police service dogs are required to do.

This DVD is meant to be used as a guideline for what your police service dog and handler should be able to do. This DVD is not only meant for the K9 handlers but should be used as a tool for supervisors to better understand the capability of the police service dogs at their disposal.

This video was also done with the RCMP in Canada. In it we train a dog to track in a suburban and urban environment. In Level One Tracking (#205-D) we taught the dog to track in the country. All police dogs must first learn to track in the country because it is relatively distraction free. We teach the dog to track in the country and then teach the dog to deal with the distractions of the city.

When done properly, protection training is extremely complex. If the foundation for protection work is not 100% correct, it is only a matter of time before the dog and handler run into problems. The goal in producing this video was to show that a person with little or no dog training experience can understand how to lay this foundation. This video is a must for training new helpers. It identifies the drives a dog works in, critical distance, and avoidance. More information available online.

For a dog to do police service, serious personal protection, or good Schutzhund work, it must have a solid foundation in defensive drive training. Before this can take place, the dog must have already gone through prey bite development and it must have reached mental maturity. Starting defense work too young can ruin a dog's working ability for life. More information available online.

Scent Work Scratch Box

This scratch box can be used for narcotics dog training, explosive dog training or accelerant dog training. Designed after scratch boxes that are used in the Federal police dog schools in Holland. The Dutch are masters of scent work. An excellent training tool that can be used to proof dogs off of odors in addition to locking dogs onto odors. The best application for these boxes is to have 5 to 7 boxes hung on walls or on 2x4 racks that you mount in a room. These boxes can also be used to train accelerant dogs. Puppy Jumping DVD

1 Hour, 23 Minutes
leerburg.com/420.htm

DVD | #420-D $29.95

Every course your dog will perform is mostly jumps, so he should approach jumps with great confidence and an understanding of how to perform them. Susan Salo believes the development of these skills begins at the puppy stage—teaching young dogs to read and drive a path to their target (and person), to understand how to react to distances that are constantly changing, and to do so without producing extra strides where they are not needed.

Foundation Jumping 4-DVD Set

Every course your dog will ever run is primarily made up of jumps; yet, it is the least taught and least understood skill set in agility. Because a dog can jump doesn't mean that he knows how. As handlers we tend to focus on practicing drills that are designed to perfect the dog's understanding of our positional cues and handling maneuvers, and we neglect to offer the dog an opportunity to hone the skills needed to master each component involved in jumping.

A number of years ago when we decided to add horses it quickly became evident that we needed to train our dogs to get along with our horses. We did not expect our dogs to become good buddies with our horses but we did expect them to learn to live peacefully with the horses. Cindy and I have years of experience with both horses and dogs. This DVD teaches people how to desensitize their dogs to their horses. In our step-by-step program we teach our dogs to accept our

Foundation Fundamentals 6-DVD Set

Important Skills to Train Before Introducing Agility Equipment

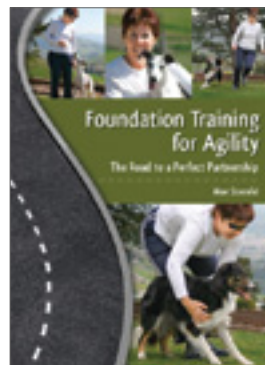

6 Hours, 34 Minutes
leerburg.com/408.htm

6-DVD Set | #408-D $74.95

This program is designed for all dogs at any skill level. Build specific skills that your dog needs before you begin his obstacle training. It's is very difficult to teach agility equipment to a dog if he's running around with a toy, leaving you to go sniff, mugging you to get his treat, etc. You can't train your dog to go over a jump or into a tunnel, much less chain together obstacles at speed, if he doesn't know how to focus on the task at hand.

To achieve your goals in agility, you need a solid working relationship with your dog and a clear and consistent communication system. Conflicting cues or missing links in your communication system will limit what your team can achieve. With clarity and consistency in your communication system, your dog will be more confident, focused, and sure of his job, which will allow you and the dog not only to achieve more, but also to enjoy the game more.

Do you know what you should be looking for when you walk a course? Walking the course effectively is one of the most important skills you can develop. Successful competitors are ones who can consistently read the course correctly and then execute their plan. Memorizing the order of the obstacles is much different from analyzing the course and planning a handling strategy.

This is the first of our 2-DVD series with Mark Keating on decoy work. The first DVD, "The Mechanics of Working a Dog in a Suit," is currently available for pre-ordering, and will be completed within the week. The second DVD will be available soon.

This series of training DVDs has two purposes:

- The first is to teach decoys correct and safe training concepts in a bite suit.
- The second, just as important purpose, is to teach dog handlers exactly what, why, and how a decoy should work a dog in a bite suit. We want to teach dog handlers exactly what decoys are doing with their dogs. We want dog handlers to recognize good training as well as inappropriate training. We want to give handlers the information they need to be able to discuss and communicate a training plan with their decoy.

Seynaeve Bite Suits

Imported from Belgium

Belgian Ring Bite Suit

A Belgian ring suit is unique in its kind. It is made especially for Belgian ring and is mostly used in combination with jute covers. It is very much protected in the lower arm and lower leg. On the hips and jacket body there is not much protection. The cut of the suit is also very different from the other suits. leerburg.com/Belgian_BiteSuit.htm

Kimono Bite Suit

The Kimono Suit is the most protective suit for full bite training over the whole body. The suit is specially designed for training on the body area. The suit has a special cut to let dogs bite easier and safer on the front and back of the shoulder area. Due to its high protection level, this suit is not only very useful for sport training, it is also very popular with law enforcement and army forces.

The Kimono jacket is different from all the other Mondio/French ring jackets and is made in a very different cut. There are no cutouts in the back and does not have separate arms. The cuts of the seams are above and below the arms. It is made to take the bite a lot in the shoulder, back, chest and upper arm area. In the beginning this jacket is a bit stiffer but it gets more flexible with using.

The Kimono Suit uses the same pants as the Mondio / French Ring Semi Training Pants or the Mondio / French Ring Training Pants. Please see those pages for the bite suit pants.

Mondio / French Ring Bite Suits

There are 3 types of Mondio/French Ring suits: Competition, Semi Training, Training. The TRAINING suit is the thickest and most protective, while the COMPETITION suit is the thinnest. Between those two is the SEMI TRAINING suit. Because the Competition suit is the thinnest, it is also much lighter in weight and more flexible than the Training suit, but it provides less protection.

Training

The training suit is the heaviest suit in the Mondioring/French Ring series. It gives maximum protection in this type of suit. The training suit has a bigger outer and inner size than the semi training because the filling of this suit is fuller and larger for training. leerburg.com/French_Mondio_Training_BiteSuit.htm

Semi Training

The semi training suit is sitting between the competition and the training suit. The suit gives more protection than the competition suit, but extra padding causes it to lose a little of its flexibility. The semi training suit is also made to take the bites over the whole body and is used the most for advanced training. leerburg.com/French_Mondio_SemiTraining_BiteSuit.htm

Competition

This competition suit is the lightest suit in the series of Mondioring and French Ring suits in weight and filling. Because of this, it becomes also the most flexible suit. From the inside to the outside, the suit is built to move quick and be flexible. Every type of bite suit is filled in a different way. The Mondioring and French Ring style suits are designed specially for better movement and to take bites all over the body. Competition suits are thin and light but still long lasting. This suit is made for the advanced decoys who will use the suit for competitions or train on a competition level. leerburg.com/French_Mondio_Competition_BiteSuit.htm

Special Order Item

Bite Tugs

Tugs are a must for building drive and focus in young & adult dogs. They can be used as rewards in narcotics work, in obedience and tracking. Herm Sprenger Prong Collars

I call prong collars "Power Steering for Dogs." It is probably the most misunderstood training tool there is. So many people take one look at it and say "Oh! I could NEVER use that on MY dog!" Then when I explain how it's used and why it's used they call back and say "ED, THIS IS THE GREATEST THING!" When a prong collar is used in training, the handler must realize that a dog who required a level 8 correction before will probably require a level 2 or 3 correction with a prong. So a strong dog with too much drive for a small person to handle is now easily controllable without a lot of effort. If you are a new Schutzhund trainer or a police service dog handler, you will need a prong collar. Curogan is a copper-tin-alloy with a high copper portion and some additives which make the material strong, but without any nickel. Nickel is often responsible for allergic reactions of sensitive dogs and causes of some skin rashes. These chains avoid a discoloration of fair haired dogs. *For more information and how to fit your dog's collar check out our web site at: leerburg.com/prong.htm

PRONG COLLARS

A Leerburg Recommended SAFETY SYSTEM for ALL Prong Collar Use

We have always recommended a backup collar be used along with a prong collar. We recently heard about a littermate to one of our dogs being killed when the prong came apart at the end of a training session. When the prong came apart the dog ran in front of a car and was killed. The owner did not have a backup collar on the dog. Unfortunately these kinds of SAD situations happen all too often.

So if you use a prong collar YOU ALSO NEED TO HAVE A BACKUP COLLAR on your dog - every time!!

The perfect safety procedure is to use a dominant dog collar along with your prong collar. I offer this advice to ALL those trainers who use prong collars.

It is not unheard of for a prong collar coming apart when you need it the most. By having a dominant dog collar on the dog at the same time as the prong this will never be a problem. Simply attach the clip on the leash to both the prong and the ring on the dominant dog collar.

PLUS Ecollars TWO Receivers - ONE Transmitter

This system is identical to the regular e-collar with the exception of an extra receiver on the collar strap. The purpose of this is not to deliver a stronger stimulation to the dog, but allow us to not have the collar so tight. The problem with single receiver systems is quite often the strap holding the collar has to be very tight on the dog's neck just to make sure the probes make contact. This system eliminates that problem. When dogs do bite work their neck muscles swell. It is temporary, but if you look at a dog's neck shortly after it has finished a training session, his neck muscled are pumped. Your dog may start a training session with a remote collar fitting perfectly, but as his neck swells during the training session the collar becomes tighter and tighter, restricting blood flow and breathing. When that happens you have shorter training sessions. This collar can be looser on the dog's neck while the probes maintain contact with the neck. MUZZLE SIZING

MUZZLE SIZING:

It's important that customers measure their dogs to determine what size muzzle a dog needs. Some muzzles are identified as breed specific, this is not an accurate way to determine what muzzle your dog needs.

Dogs within a specific breed can have a wide variety of head measurements. It is impossible to say that one muzzle size fits all Rottweilers or one muzzle size fits all Dobermans or one muzzle size fits all Cocker Spaniels.

The only true way to determine what muzzle fits your dog is by measuring your dog's head in the manner in which we detail below.

Check out all the muzzle measuring instructions, muzzle sizes and FREE videos at leerburg.com/muzzlefit.htm

Solid Gold Dog & Cat Food

Sun Dancer Dog Food

Sun Dancer is a chicken based gluten free dry dog food with a moderate protein and fat content. Sun Dancer includes three exciting new ingredients; tapioca, chia seed, and fructooligosaccharide (FOS). Tapioca is derived from a gluten free root vegetable and is an excellent source of starch which is vital to the production of dry pet foods. Chia seed is an excellent source of omega 3 fatty acids and has a naturally balanced ratio between omega 3 and 6. Chia is also full of protein, vitamins, and minerals.

Fructooligosaccharide (FOS) is a prebiotic, which can help improve overall digestive health. Palatability and digestibility studies have shown Sun Dancer to be one of the most palatable and digestible foods in the Solid Gold line and against key competitors. Our own dogs go crazy for it and we are sure it will be as big of a hit with Solid Gold dogs around the world. Ingredients available online. leerburg.com/dancer.htm

Barking at the Moon Dog Food

Grain Free, High Protein, Low Carbohydrate dry dog food for performance dogs. We are raw feeders and promote raw feeding for dogs and cats, but the reality is that not everyone can feed their pets a raw diet. With help from some of our nutritional consultants, we sorted through the vast variety of commercial products available and narrowed it down to products we felt comfortable feeding our own dogs and cats. Our criterion was as follows, human grade quality ingredients and no grains. Barking at the Moon Dog

Food met all of our criteria and was one of the top grain free kibbles on Whole Dog Journals "best" list. Many of our fellow dog breeders feed Barking at the Moon to their breeding and working dogs in conjunction with a raw diet with excellent results. leerburg.com/barkingmoon.htm

The Michael Ellis School for Dog Trainers

The Michael Ellis School for Dog Trainers is located in Fairfield, California. In early 2013, Michael is planning to add a course for military veterans. This course will be specifically tailored to veterans who are being discharged from military services.

On September 15th, 2009, Michael Ellis started his school for dog trainers. I went to my first dog training seminar in October of 1973 and since then have attended hundreds and hundred of seminars and traveled all over America and Europe filming various people training dogs. I have never met a more gifted dog trainer than Michael Ellis and I feel lucky to call him my friend.

If you own a local dog training business then you should consider attending Michael's school because you are the person Michael is directing his courses towards. Training dog trainers is what he has done almost every weekend for the past 10 years. At times I find myself wondering where dog training would be in this country today had we had Michael Ellis around 25 years ago when I started attending training seminars.

If you want to take your training to the next level and beyond you should consider attending some of Michael's short courses. He understands that its difficult for people to take large blocks of time away from work and family, which is why he has kept his courses short.
